PREFACE

THE Cartulary of the Hospital of St. John the Baptist, preserved in Magdalen College Library, is a volume of 147 folios, and measures 11 inches by 7 inches. The first 53 folios contain the charters about tenements in the town of Oxford; the remainder deals with properties outside Oxford in the counties of Oxfordshire, Bucks., and Warwickshire. It appears that it was drawn up in 1278 or 1279 as it contains deeds 51 and 275, which are assigned to the year Michaelmas 1278 to Michaelmas 1279 by the names of the mayor and bailiffs; but it must be confessed that the succession of town officers is still a little uncertain about the years 1276-9. It is at all events certain that its date is after 1274, for it contains many deeds of the years 1274-5.

In 1910 the Oxford Historical Society received an offer from the President and Fellows of Magdalen College to defray the expense of printing this Cartulary; but when it was found that the College muniment room contained almost all the originals from which the Cartulary was copied, and also many other charters giving the earlier and later history of the lands and tenements, it was decided to compile a new Cartulary and to limit the work to the properties which were owned by the Hospital within the town of Oxford. The following volumes contain more than 900 charters, whereas there are only 171 in the corresponding portion of the Cartulary of the Hospital.

To make the work complete, the lease books of the College have been examined and abstracts of the leases have been printed, tracing the history of the properties to modern times. Also the Fine book of the College is to be included, by which we can discover the gradual rise in the value of the houses during the last three centuries; and such rentals of the Hospital as survive will also be printed.

It must be remembered that the order in which the deeds are arranged is only tentative; they bear no marks to show to what houses they refer; and the numbering which was assigned to them, apparently in the sixteenth century, has no meaning at all. In particular it was found difficult to rearrange the 400 deeds about houses in the parish of St. Peter in the East, and it may well be that some of them are assigned to wrong houses.

The deeds are printed in full with the exception of some leases of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in which certain clauses, which are of common form, have been paraphrased in English. The word or letters at the head of an indenture are reproduced, not in all cases, but where they seemed to be interesting.¹ In the abstracts of leases the proper names are spelt as in the originals, and also in many cases the trades that are mentioned, e.g. 'chirurgien', 'doctor in phisicke', &c. The dates assigned in the margin of the deeds, where they run from Michaelmas to Michaelmas, are obtained from the names of the mayor and provosts;² but readers must be warned that the succession of officers from 1230 to 1260, or even later, is not quite certain.

At one time it was thought that the handwriting of the deeds might help to fix the year in which they were issued. When we have twenty deeds in the same hand, all ending with the words 'Willelmo clerico', and another twenty in another hand, all ending with 'Ricardo de Eppewelle clerico', there can be little doubt that we have the handwritings of these two clerks. And as the deeds are generally witnessed by the

would have been very difficult to read, had not both parts of the indenture been preserved.

mayor and bailiffs, and seem to have been issued at the Portmote, it was hoped that it might be the case that they were always drawn up by the town clerk. Had it been so, the deeds of the thirteenth century could have been arranged in a progressive series by their handwriting. But these hopes came to nothing; it was discovered that certainly from 1235 onwards, and probably before, the town clerk was not alone in drawing up deeds. There are writs of Henry III which speak of the 'chirographers' of Oxford; and although they were not many in number, possibly not more than eight at any period of the thirteenth century, it has not been found possible to get much help towards the accurate dating of deeds from the study of the handwritings. But it is believed that the facsimiles of some of the thirteenth-century hands will be interesting to students, and will not be without use for the dating of deeds. If a deed is found to be in the well-marked hand of Willelmus Clericus, it may be assigned to the years 1220-35, even though there are no names of town officers to guide us.

One curious fact was discovered by the study of the hands. The collotypes of a page of the Cartulary and of a charter written by Richard de Eppewelle prove that the Cartulary was written not by an inmate of the Hospital but by Richard de Eppewelle, one of the professional scribes of Oxford. Not only is the hand of the Cartulary identical with the hand of Richard de Eppewelle but there is the same curious spelling parochea for parochia. It is believed that when the Oseney Cartulary is printed it will also be found to be written by two or perhaps three of the Oxford chirographers. Whatever might be the case elsewhere, in Oxford professional writers must always have been easy to obtain.

Plate I is a specimen of an early hand which occurs more than once among the deeds of the Hospital. It must be earlier than June 2, 1200, on which day John de Oxonia, bishop of Norwich, died.

Plate II is given not for the sake of the writing but because the deed is peculiar. The date is probably after 1205, the year of the death of John Kepeharm, who seems to have been mayor for life.

Plates III and IV give the hand of Willelmus Clericus. He is believed to have been town clerk until about Michaelmas 1235, when he became prepositus of the city. The hand is one of the easiest to distinguish. It is less cramped than most and he makes his ' & ' much like a 7.

Plate V is more interesting for its contents and for the fact that it can be dated, than for its writing.

Plate VI is an early hand of which there are apparently other specimens among the deeds of the Hospital.

Plates VII and VIII give the hand of William de Mildecumbe, who was certainly town clerk about the years 1235-43. His writing is one of the commonest in our deeds and one of the prettiest. The photographs hardly do it justice.

Plate IX is the hand of Robert the town clerk, always an untidy hand, and it will be noticed that, as he wrote, he could not keep his line but was cramped on the right-hand side. This is a feature often found in his deeds.

Plate X is perhaps the same hand in old age. The capitals A, R, and W are alike in both, but the tail of 'g' is quite different. If it is the same hand as Plate IX it must be assumed that in the course of nineteen years the scribe took to a new, perhaps more fashionable, way of making a 'g'.

Plate XI gives the hand of Geoffrey Belewe, of which we have many other specimens.

Plate XII is believed to be the hand of Iacobus Clericus, and XIII to be Mathew de Thornton.

Plate XIV is certainly the hand of Philip the Notary, who seems to have been much employed by the Hospital for legal documents.

Plates XV and XVI give the hand of Richard de Eppewelle; the one gives a deed written by him, the other gives the page of the Cartulary where the deed occurs. One who compares them will be convinced that the Cartulary was written by Richard de Eppewelle. It must be remembered that in the originals the handwriting is of the same size in both.

Plate XVII is the hand of Richard de Waledene, who was town clerk in the reign of Edward I. It may be added that the photograph is not from no. 11 B (see p. 41) but from the counterpart, no. 10 C, which ends with six words that are not found in 11 B.

Plate XVIII is to show that in the Hustengs court the fines were issued in triplicate, two heads and a foot, as in the King's court.

It was not thought that the illustrations were of such importance that it was necessary to preserve the size of the originals, with the consequent disadvantage of plates that must be folded.

The main preface to the Cartulary will be in the third and last volume. Besides the light which the following deeds throw on the succession of mayors and bailiffs and on the geography of mediaeval Oxford, some new and not uninteresting points emerge; we learn in what house the first Oxford press was situated (see p. 272), and where the celebrated John Dorn kept his stock of books (see p. 411); also it appears that the Austin Friars, before they were settled on the site of Wadham, lived for a year or more near Magdalen Bridge (see pp. 25 and 29).

This Preface should not end without an expression of gratitude to the President and Fellows of Magdalen College for their liberal gift in printing these volumes, and in particular to Mr. H. A. Wilson, Mr. C. H. Turner, Mr. R. L. Poole, and the present Bursar and his predecessor, for their help and encouragement in carrying out the work.

A CARTULARY OF THE HOSPITAL OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST

I. ST. CLEMENT'S PARISH. 1-15.

1. TENEMENTS AT THE END OF THE BRIDGE ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE ROAD.

THE property of the Hospital in St. Clement's was given by Thomas le Mareschal in 1302 (deed no. 4), and seems to have been neither increased nor diminished until 1772. In the rental of 1293 the Hospital has no houses east of the bridge; in the rental of 1325 it has four shops, which afterwards grew into two houses and five shops, but the occurrence of the word 'proxima' shows that the seven tenements were all adjacent. The map which is here reproduced shows where the property lay. In old days the road after crossing East Bridge passed north of St. Clement's church, and what is now called the Cowley Road led from Cowley direct to the Cowley mill called Temple Mill, and did not lead to East Bridge. The first tenements on the west side of the church belonged to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and subsequently to Oriel College; between these and the Cherwell was the property of the Hospital of St. John, measuring perhaps 40 yards each way. In 1302 there was a lane between this tenement and the tenement of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew (see deed no. 4), but by 1409 this lane had been acquired from the lord of the manor by John Catour,¹ probably the tenant of Oriel College (see no. 7), so that the holding of the Hospital of St. John was in future bounded by a lane on the south side, not on the east.

Under the Mileways Act of 1771 part of the holding of the College was required for the new road to Iffley which was then made, but the remainder is retained by Magdalen still.

As the parish of St. Clement's was in the manor of Headington and the Hundred of Bullington, although ecclesiastically in the rural deanery of Oxford, the deeds are attested not by the mayor and bailiffs but evidently by those who attended the Hundred Court of Bullingdon; among them will be noticed freeholders from Marston, Noke, Chilworth, Combe (a lost manor near Chilworth), Henry de Biafo, probably from Waterperry, and Richard le Poure, probably from Oddington.

1772, imply that the holding contained two houses; but probably 'the College' is an error for 'Oriell College'. If the holding had been divided, the rent would have been divided.

Oxon. Assisa uenit recognitura si Iohannes Furlong & Amicia uxor eius iniuste &c. disseisuerunt Adam de Lodbroke, magistrum hospitalis sancti Iohannis Baptiste extra portam orientalem Oxonie, de libero tenemento suo in Bruggesete post primam &c.; et unde elsewhere that Richard fitz-Nigel held Iffley from about 1190 to nearly 1220. Juliana de sancto Remigio seems to have died about 1194 (Cal. of Docs. in France, ed. Round, p. 189). This croft of Girardus can hardly be identical with the meadow-land which passed to the Hospital by deed no. 4.

queritur quod disseisiuerunt eum de quinque acris terre cum pertinentiis &c.

Et Iohannes & Amicia non ueniunt, set pro eodem Iohanne & pro illa, que est uxor ipsius Iohannis & attachiata per nomen Amicie, quidam Thomas Frankeleyn respondet tanquam eorum balliuis; et dicit quod ubi predictus Adam in breui suo facit uxorem ipsius Iohannis nominari Amiciam, rectum nomen eius est Amia¹ & non Amicia; unde petit iudicium de breui &c. Et si &c., tunc dicit quod illud quod est in assisa ista in uisu posita est quoddam solum aqua coopertum, de quo quidem solo predictus Adam, qui nunc queritur, seisisus est de medietate, ut de libero tenemento, & fuit die impetracionis breuis, scilicet sextodecimo die Ianuarii anno regni domini regis nunc Anglie decimo nono, & de alia medietate quidam Henricus le Clerke est tenens ut de libero tenemento & fuit predicto die impetracionis breuis, qui quidem Henricus non nominatur in breui; unde petit iudicium de breui. Et si &c., tunc dicit quod ipsi nullam iniuriam seu disseisinam predicto Ade inde fecerunt. Et de hoc pon[it] se super assisam, et Adam similiter. Et super hoc idem Adam dicit quod qualitercumque predictus balliuis superius allegauit uxorem predicti Iohannis nominari Amiam¹ & non Amiciam, prout per breue supponitur, & per hoc intendit breue predictum cassare, predictus Iohannes predicto die impetracionis breuis fuit solus tenens tenementorum in uisu positorum per disseisinam suam ipsi Ade factam, absque hoc quod uxor ipsius Iohannis tunc aliquid habuit in eisdem; et hoc paratus est uerificare; ideo capiatur assisa. Recognitores ueniunt, qui, de consensu predictorum Ade & balliui electi & iurati, dicunt super sacramentum suum quod rectum nomen uxoris ipsius Iohannis est Amia¹ & non Amicia. Dicunt eciam quod eadem Amia¹ nichil habuit in terra predicta predicto die impetracionis breuis; et predicti Adam & Henricus nichil habuerunt in eadem. Dicunt eciam super sacramentum suum quod quidam Hugo Malaunay fuit seisisus de predicta terra in uisu posita cum pertinentiis in dominico suo ut de feodo & iure, qui eandem terram cum pertinentiis diu ante statutum de terris seu tenementis ad manum mortuam non ponendis editum, uidelicet tempore H. regis proau domini regis nunc, dedit cuidam Waltero tunc magistro hospitalis predicti, predecessori predicti magistri, tenendam sibi & successoribus suis & hospitali predicto in liberam, puram & perpetuam elemosinam imperpetuum; uirtute cuius doni idem Walterus predecessor &c. & similiter omnes successores sui & predictus

[An inquisition Ad Quod Dampnum about the grant of Thomas le Marshall.]

July 3, 28 Ed. I, 1300, writ to the sheriff to inquire whether it will be to the damage of the king or others, if Thomas son of John le Mareschall of Oxford gives a messuage, 8 selds, one acre of land, one acre of meadow, and 7d. of rent in the suburb of Oxford, in Bruggesete, Mershtone, and Cowley to the warden and brethren of the hospital of St. John without the east gate.

(Record

Endorsement that as some of the tenements were within the liberty of Oxford, the return of the writ pertained to the bailiffs of the town.

² There was a dies amoris between St. Frideswide's and the Hospital of St. John on July 25, 1346, concerning the fishery between East Bridge and King's Mill, and concerning an eyte; the terms of the agreement may be seen in Cart. St. Frid. i. 471. Apparently on that occasion the Prior claimed that the five acres mentioned in this deed were part of the land which John de Furland had given to Henry de Sanford with remainder to St. Frideswide's. In the Cartulary, i. 466-8, Thomas son of John le Marschal gives a toft in St. Clement's to John de Furland, clerk, and he gave it to Henry de Sandford, clerk, for his life with remainder to St. Frideswide's. It is noteworthy that in the charters of St. Frideswide's the wife of John Furlong is written Amicia. It would be unwise to assume on the strength of this document that there was a master of the Hospital of St. John bearing the name Walter in the days of Hugh de Malannay. In inquisitions of this kind the jury was reckless what names were assigned to abbots, priors, and masters of bygone ages.

Inquest before the bailiffs of the town of Oxford [no date], by the oath of Thomas de Henxeye, Walter Bost, Thomas de Orlyens, William de Hedindon, Thomas de Staunton, Everard Pistor, Oliver le Taillour, Thomas Wyth, John Franceys, Henry le Barbor, Robert de Welles and John de Newebyri. They say that it is not to the damage of the king or of others if Thomas aforesaid be allowed to give to the warden and brethren of the said hospital one messuage and 4 selds. The messuage is held of the said warden and brethren by the service of 4s. a year and is worth 15s. One of the selds is held of the said warden and brethren by the service of 12d. a year and is worth 4s. The other 3 selds are held of the comminalty of the town of Oxford by the service of 12d. and are worth 9s. The rent of 7d. issues from a tenement which Alice la Webbe holds for the term of her life from the said warden and brethren. There will remain to the said Thomas a tenement in the town of Oxford which he is to hold from the said warden and brethren for the term of his life in exchange for the aforesaid tenements, which tenement is worth 4 marks a year; and they say that it will suffice for the term of the life of the said Thomas for the performance of the services due both from the aforesaid messuage and 4 selds and also from the said tenement which he retains, and none the less the said messuage and 4 selds will remain liable to assessment (conductibilia & talliabilia) for sustaining all the burdens which they sustained before. And Thomas can be put on assises and juries as before. The remaining 4 selds, the acre of land, and the acre of meadow are not within the liberty of the town of Oxford. Therefore they know nothing thereon.

Oct. 8,

Inquest at Oxford before the sheriff of Oxford, taken on Saturday before the feast of St. Dionisius, 28 Ed. I, by the oath of John de Lodehale, John de Gardino, John Somer, Walter de Stoford, William le Frankeleyn, Thomas le Frankeleyn, Hugh Thurbern, Martin Stubbe, Geoffrey bi Northebroke, John de Windesore, Richard Peggy, and Roger de Cruce. They say that it will not be to the damage of the king or of others if the said Thomas gives to the warden and brethren aforesaid 4 selds in Briggesete, an acre of land in Mershtone, and an acre of meadow in Couele. The 4 selds are held of the king of his manor of Hedindone by the service of 12d. yearly and suit at the frankpledge at the said manor twice a year; they are worth 5s. a year. The acre of land in Mershtone is held of Thomas Thurstan by the service of $\frac{1}{2}$ d. yearly and is worth 4d. The acre of meadow in Couele is held of William Aumori by the service of one clove of gillyflower, and is worth 12*d.* There will remain to the said Thomas a tenement in the town of Oxford to be held of the said warden and brethren for the term of his life in exchange for the said tenements and for a messuage and for four other selds; which tenement is worth 4 marks a year. Also there will remain to him another tenement worth 4*s.* a year; also 3*s.* of rent in Oxford, and 3*s.* of rent in Haliwell. They say these tenements will suffice for the performance of the services due both from them and also from the 4 selds and land and meadow.

II. ST. PETER IN THE EAST;

OUTSIDE THE EAST GATE AND ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE ROAD. 16-69.

On the south side of High Street the Hospital acquired land piece by piece, and since 1557 Magdalen has owned everything between Rose Lane and the Cherwell. It is not easy to reconstruct the geography of this part of Oxford, but it is evident that all the southern part of what is now the Botanical Garden was known as Paris Mead, which extended from Rose Lane to the Cherwell. From the following deeds, in particular nos. 17 and 23, we learn that Paris Mead had a frontage on the road next to the Cherwell, and this is confirmed by the wording of the rentals which describe the first house on the south side of the road as 'juxta pratum de Parys'. North of Paris Mead was the cemetery measuring 80 or 90 feet by 300 feet. This extended behind the houses which fronted the street, as we learn from the note to no. 32, but at one point it must itself have reached the street. The rentals show that by 1293 the Hospital had five houses, apart from quitrents, and that they were contiguous, being bounded by Paris Mead on the east, and doubtless by the cemetery on the south and west. Of these the first was by 1350 no more than a cottage worth 1*s.* a year, and in 1358 it ceased to be inhabited, but more houses were acquired, and in 1412 they were ten in all. Shortly before 1426, as we learn from the rental of that year, five of the houses towards East Bridge were burnt down and they were not rebuilt, and the Hospital was left with a collection of buildings near the corner of Rose Lane and High Street; these were let as one holding, which was known as the Noah's Ark, but we learn incidentally that as late as the year 1700

it was still seven tenements, and a plan of them in 1750 may be seen in Isaac Taylor's map of Oxford.

1. PARIS MEAD.

By the following deed the Hospital acquired two-thirds of Paris Mead; the remainder was given by Stachia of Shaftesbury (see no. 66) and Laurence, son of Rocelin (see no. 82).

2. THE FIRST THREE HOUSES.

The following deeds show how the holding of Richard Bodin, bounded on the east by Paris Mead and on the west by land of Hugh le Bolter, was granted to William Chese at a perpetual rent of six shillings. About 1220 John Chese granted the eastern half to William Faber at a rent of 25*d.*, who in turn granted it to Ralf de Cyrencestre at a rent of four shillings; it passed to William Crompe in 1230-1, and John Crompe his grandson in 1266-7 granted it to the Austin Friars, who must have had a plan of settling at this spot before they obtained their holding on the site of Wadham College. Probably the Hospital acquired the land from the friars, but no deed survives. Deed no. 23 suggests, though it does not prove, that the Hospital acquired the land as early as 1267.

The western half was divided into two parts, of which one was granted in 1230-1 by William Chese to William Crompe at a rent of two shillings; in 1266, at which time it was two messuages, John Crompe granted it to Philip le Notur, who immediately granted it to the Austin friars. The remainder of the holding passed from the widow of William Chese to Richard de Witney, thence to Philip le Notur, and before 1272 it was owned by the Hospital. The original rent of six shillings due to the heirs of Richard Bodin had been settled upon this portion of the tenement, and apparently by the gift of Andrew Halegod (see no. 518) had been reduced to four shillings (see no. 32).

¹ Dr. Macray (Muniments of Magdalen College, p. 129) reads 'unas estiuales', i.e. 'some grapes of summer'; but it would be impossible that an unspecified amount should be paid; if grapes were given, it would be necessary to say how many. It probably means 'one pair of summer shoes'; in Mediaeval Latin 'unas caligas' or 'unos sotulares' (see no. 449) means one pair of shoes. Ducange gives instances of aestiuales or aestivalia meaning some kind of shoe. It is by no means certain that this deed refers to the same tenement as the next deed. The only reason for inserting it here is the mention of William Cheese as one of the neighbours.

4. THE ADJACENT TENEMENT.

The tenement to which the following deeds refer was apparently next on the west. We ascertain from deed no. 321 that the Hospital had acquired possession of it by 1266, but how it was acquired is unknown. We assign these deeds to this locality because of the name of John, miller of Cowley; yet it is uncertain whether he was on the east or west; from deed no. 43 we learn that in 1267 a John de Cowley was on the west, occupying probably part of the land which was afterwards made into a cemetery, but deeds 28-30 mention a William de Cowley occupying the tenement of deeds 33 and 34, on the east.

5. A PLOT OF GROUND TO BE USED AS A BURIAL-GROUND FOR THE PATIENTS WHO DIED IN THE HOSPITAL.

The next tenement presents some difficulties. On June 2, 1293, a royal writ was issued that an inquisition should be held whether it would be to the damage of the king if the Hospital of St. John was allowed to enclose with a low wall a vacant plot of ground, being 300 feet in length and 90 feet in breadth, 'on the south side of the high road which passes hard by the cemetery of the said Hospital, and to keep it enclosed as a cemetery for the patients (see no. 42) who die in the Hospital'; also to inquire whether Henry, late king, caused the said plot to be fenced off at his own cost for the use of the said Hospital. The answer of the jury was that it will not be to the king's damage, provided that the high road remains of the width of 26 feet along the length of the cemetery of the said Hospital; also that the late king caused the plot to be fenced off for the use of the Hospital. The Hospital in the next year obtained possession by the gift of the king; the charter is not now to be found among the muniments of the College, but it is on the Patent Roll of 22 Ed. I. In deed no. 39 the dimensions are said to be 80 feet by 300 feet. Whether its length was from north to south or from east to west is not stated, but from the words quoted in the note to deed 32, and from the fact that Paris Mead is stated in nos. 54-7 to have been distant from the high road about 170 feet, we conclude that the length of the cemetery was from east to west, extending about two-thirds of the way between Rose Lane and the Cherwell. We do not know how long it remained a cemetery; when the Hospital was suppressed it would be required no longer, but as we find from the rentals that three houses were erected, apparently on this site, in 14 Ric. II and 16 Ric. II, it is possible that at all events part of it was secularized before the end of the fourteenth century.

¹ Seal, green, pointed oval, 1 in. x 3/4 in., a lion, S' IOH'IS DE FINCHAM. In the year 1266 by deed no. 321 Henry

The verdict of the jury stated that this piece of land had been given to the Hospital by Henry III; but if this was the case, by what means had it become the property of Edward I? The explanation may be that it was the burying-place of the Jews, reserved to them by the grant of Henry III (see no. 73). When they were expelled in 1291, it would become the property of the king; and the Hospital may have claimed that when it was no longer required by the Jews it should belong to the Hospital, as being part of the burial-ground which was given by Henry III.

The deeds are interesting as showing that the cemetery of the brethren of the Hospital was on the north side of the road, probably where Magdalen Tower stands, and also to the west of it.

A difficulty is presented by deeds nos. 40 and 41. In September, John de Farendone asserts that his house is behind that of Robert de Brackley, and in October the position is reversed. Possibly the two had changed houses at Michaelmas, but the more probable explanation is that, though Robert de Brackley was to the north of John de Farendone, part of his tenement, such as the outbuildings, was to the south. Mediaeval tenements were often much intermingled, and a wood-house or garden belonging to one tenement could often be reached only by passing through another tenement. The stipulation of John de Farendone that no wall should be erected between his land on the south and the cemetery indicates that he had the right of the grass and pasture in the plot of ground, and would retain it, even after its consecration. It was not repugnant to mediaeval ideas to use consecrated ground as a means of making money, and incumbents habitually let the grazing of the church-yard to the highest bidder. In deed no. 25 the cemetery seems to be called vivarium, 'enclosure', and to have been used for a garden or paddock by the house in front.

6. DOMUS PILLE.

In the *Hundred Rolls*² of 1279 we learn that outside the East gate and on the south side of the road there were three houses owned by Cristina Pille, which paid rents of assize, or, as we should say, quitrents, of 2s., 2s., and 10d. to the Hospital of St. John, and that their net value was 20s., 2s., and 2s. a year respectively, so that one of the houses was much larger than the others. In the rentals of the Hospital they are described as domus Pille, aula Pille, and domus Bix, paying 2s., 2s., and 20d. respectively. It is therefore probable that the figure xd. in the Hundred Rolls, as the rent of the third house, is an error for xxd. The rent of 2s. on domus Pille was apparently given to the Hospital in 1267 by Joan de Hasele or possibly by her husband. The history of the tenement is traced by our deeds from 1311, at which time it consisted of five cottages (see no. 44), to 1334, when it was in the hands of William de Hadley, dyer. He died in 1339,³ but was apparently succeeded by William his son; for Twyne⁴ mentions that the will of William the Dyer was proved in 1349, by which he left to the church of St. Peter in the East for masses four cottages outside East Gate between a cottage of the Hospital of St. John on the east and a tenement of Reginald the dyer¹ on the west; and he left to Richard his brother for the term of his life an entry with a curtilage similarly bounded, with remainder to the church of St. Peter's. In 1356 and subsequent years the rentals show that the occupant or owner was Richard le Dyer, and for some unknown reason the quit-rent had increased from 2s. to 3s. From the rental of 1363 we find that the Hospital was now owner of the tenement, but we do not know how it was obtained, and among the inquisitions ad quod damnum at the Record Office there is nothing to give us information about it. The true explanation may be that Richard le Dyer was allowed by the will of William le Dyer to assign the legacy of four cottages to any religious house he thought best, and exercised this power to transfer the gift from St. Peter's church to the Hospital of St. John; that Richard was allowed by the Hospital to retain possession for life on condition that the rent was raised to three shillings, and that in 1363 the Hospital obtained possession of the cottages and of the 'entry with a curtilage' under the quitclaim of deed no. 50. From deed no. 47 it will be observed that in 1319 there was a messuage in addition to the five cottages, probably behind it; we may identify it with the 'entry' mentioned in the will of William le Dyer.

7. AULA PILLE.

On the west of domus Pille was a tenement called aula Pille. As we know from deed no. 52 that it was once called Sheld Hall, it is possible that in the thirteenth century it was an academic hall; but the same deed shows that in 1326 it was a vacant site. The number of the scholars at the University decreased continuously from the middle of the thirteenth century, and the more distant halls were no longer required. In 1337 it was rebuilt, but did not become an academic hall. The Hospital of St. John had a rent of 2s. from this tenement, one shilling granted by Geoffrey Aurifaber (see no. 51) in 1278 or 1279, and one shilling by Andrew Halegod (no. 518), and obtained the tenement itself in 1337 from Sir Adam de Sharesulle (no. 57). At its southern end it had a garden or plot of ground measuring $85\frac{1}{2}$ feet by $148\frac{1}{2}$ feet, which extended to the ditch of Paris Mead, and the whole property may have measured 200 feet from N. to S., and 85 feet wide. An inquisition *ad quod damnum*¹ was held on April 10, 1337, to ascertain the value of the property, and whether it would be to the king's damage if it was given to the Hospital for the maintenance of the sick and poor; the verdict of the jury was that the tenement, which was held of the Hospital by a rent of 2s., was worth 4s. a year in addition, and might be given to the Hospital without damage to the king. It will be noticed that the tenement was at the time paying a rent of 16s. (see no. 54), and paid that sum in the rental of 13 Ed. III. This under-valuation is a constant feature of the inquisitions ad quod damnum.²

8. DOMUS BIX.

The Hospital received a rent of 20d. a year from a house which is called domus Bix in the rentals, or domus quondam Radulfi Bix. Its situation is a little uncertain. All the rentals before 30 Ed. III place domus Bix before domus Pille and aula Pille, as though it were to the east of them; but all the later rentals place it after them; and it is fairly evident that it was to the west of the tenements of Pille; for in the rental of 1389 it is described as 'hard by the gateway of St. Frideswide', and from the year 1385 it was held by the Prior of St. Frideswide. There is no charter in the Cartulary of St. Frideswide to show how the Priory acquired it, nor is there at the Record Office any Inquisition ad quod damnum about St. Frideswide's in or near the year 1385; but it is well known that many inquisitions have been lost. It is therefore quite possible that the house was given to St. Frideswide's in 1385, and united with the adjacent house which had long been the property of that Priory; for its later history see no. 60.

The following deed refers to domus Bix; in 1253 Andrew Halegod gave to the Hospital a rent of 20d. from the house of William le Bike (no. 518).

9. A RENT OF 2s. FROM A HOUSE OF THE PRIOR OF ST. FRIDESWIDE.

In the Cartulary of St. Frideswide (vol. i, pp. 376, 377) we learn that about the years 1210-30 the Priory obtained a house between Nicholas Wistle, and Simon, son of John, on which there was a rent of 2s. due to the Hospital of St. John. The house was at the north end of Rose Lane, and to harmonize the details which we obtain in various charters it is necessary to assume that it lay behind domus Bix. It must have been united with domus Bix about 1385. At the dissolution of the monasteries this property passed into the hand of William Standish (see no. 60) who gave it to Magdalen College in 1557.

The rentals show that the Hospital received 2s. a year for the road which led to the grange of St. Frideswide, standing at the south end of Rose Lane. The Cartulary of St. Frideswide (vol. i, p. 374) informs us that the Priory acquired from Alexander de Shaftesbury and Agnes his wife a strip of land to make a road to the grange, but there is no mention of a rent reserved. The house of Alexander of Shaftesbury afterwards passed into the possession of the Hospital, and it is possible that the Priory acquired from the Hospital some land to widen the road at a rent of 2s. a year, but there is no deed to that effect among the muniments at Magdalen or in the Cartulary of St. Frideswide.

All the land from Rose Lane to East Gate belonged to the Trinitarian Friars. Towards the end of 1292 an inquisition was held whether Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, might be allowed to give this land to the Trinitarians; it was stated to be 234 feet wide at its north end, and 468 feet from north to south, and to be the property of the Hospital of St. John. The last statement is not accurate; only two out of nine houses belonged to the Hospital; but all tenements without East Gate owed suit of court to the Hospital. In the Hundred Rolls¹ we learn that in 1279 the Earl of Cornwall held nine houses outside East Gate, of which the fifth and ninth from East Gate had been bought from the Hospital. The latter was obtained by the Hospital from Stachia de Shaftesbury, of whom also we hear in the Cartulary of St. Frideswide, vol. i, p. 374; the former was obtained from the widow of Roger del Ake. A quitrent of a pound of incense was paid by the Trinitarians to the Hospital.

III. ST. PETER IN THE EAST;

OUTSIDE EAST GATE; NORTH SIDE. 70-153.

Before the end of the fourteenth century the Hospital owned all the land from the Cherwell to Long Wall, except one shop which was acquired by Magdalen in 1465 (see no. 111). The buildings of the Hospital, as erected by Henry III, extended westward as far as what is now the porter's lodge. This is evident from the rentals of 1478-84, which show that at that time Magdalen Hall was erected on the site of four tenements, of which the easternmost is often described as being 'next to the great gate of the Hospital', and pictures and plans of Magdalen Hall show the gate of Magdalen College between Magdalen Hall and the President's house, no doubt on the site of the gate of St. John's Hospital. It is impossible to say what stood on the site of the Hospital before 1235. Deed no. 71 says that buildings were destroyed to make a site for the gateway and chapel; and deed no. 75 mentions a tenement which must have been on the site of the gateway. Farther to the east was the garden of the Jews given by the king under deed 73; and if, as seems possible, the grant of Hugh de Malaunay included a farm-house or manor house with a moat (see no. 148) there was probably an entry to it between the garden of the Jews and the Cherwell.

The line of the houses from Long Wall to the Hospital was approximately where the St. Swithun's New Buildings now stand. It seems probable, therefore, that when the king erected his buildings about 1230-5, he pushed the front forward to the edge of the public road.

1. THE GRANT OF HUGH MALAUNAY.

Hugo de Malaunay, or de Malo Alneto, was granted the Manors of Chalgrove and Rycote, once held by Peter Boterel, being of the Honour of Wallingford, by John Count of Mortain, who held that Honour. The deed is preserved in the Cartae Antiquae (Q. 19) at the Record Office. By the following deed all the property at Oxford which belonged to this fee was given by him, or rather sold, to the Hospital of St. John, which was already in existence. Not only was it customary for a manor in the county to have one or more houses in Oxford attached to it, but some manors had in addition an extent of meadow-land in the vicinity of Oxford. Thus Robert D'Oyley and Roger d'Ivri each had one half of the island of Oseney, and Geoffrey de Clinton, lord of Glympton, gave to Oseney a hide of land called Langney, lying to the west of Oseney. In like manner the meadow called Aston's Eyt, through which the new mouth of the Cherwell has been cut, was attached to the manor of Lewknor. From the following deed, and from the entries in the rentals, we learn that Hugo de Malaunay had a similar estate which must have comprised The Grove, and the meadow once known as Cowlake or Great Mead, now known as the meadow within Addison's Walk. That this meadow was part of Malaunay's gift is proved by entries in the rentals that the Hospital of St. John paid a quitrent of ten shillings to the manor of Chalgrove for the meadow called Great Mead; and that The Grove was also part of the gift may be concluded from the fact that the original buildings of the Hospital were in The Grove facing the town wall (see no. 351), and this deed would not have been entered first in the Cartulary, and Malaunay would not have been reckoned as the founder (see no. 14) unless the site of the buildings was part of his gift. How much more was included we do not know; but the Hospital had many rents in Oxford about which we have no charters, and Malaunay may have been the giver of them. He died in 1222 (Exc. e. rot. fin., p. 79), and Peter his son and successor died towards the end of 1226 (Cal. of Pat. Rolls, p. 91). Thereupon the manor of Chalgrove escheated to the king, who at that time held the Honour of Wallingford, and in this way the patronage or advowson of the Hospital of St. John passed into the hands of the king.

Malaunay was not founder of the Hospital in the sense that he originated it, for it existed as early as 1170 or 1180, but he was founder in the sense of giving the freehold on which the buildings stood.

2. THE GARDEN OF THE JEWS.

It is a legitimate assumption from the language of the King's charter that this garden was the burial-place of the Jews.

² A note in Wood's hand. 'This is the hillock or island by the necessary house which was cast away 1684.' Wood gives no reason for this statement.

3. A TENEMENT ON THE SITE OF THE GATEWAY.

The Charter Roll of 1246 (Cal. of Chart. Rolls, i. 300) asserts that this tenement was outside East Gate, and the date of the deed and the mention of the king's almoner suggest that the site was required for the building operations of the king. John Kepeharm, identical with John Carpenter (cp. 326 with 329), occupied the first tenement west of the gateway which led into the Hospital (see no. 80). Therefore the house of Amicia must have been on the site of the gateway.

4. THE FIRST TENEMENT WEST OF THE GATEWAY.

The Hospital owned a rent of 4s. on this tenement as early as 1270. Our deeds trace its history to 1334, when it was in the hands of Reginald the dyer and Agnes his wife. The Hospital acquired the freehold between 1347 and 1353, probably for non-payment of the quit-rent. The rentals of 1351 and 1352 record no payments in those years. Although the rent was in subsequent years between 6s. and 7s., during the depression which followed the Black Death the house would not have been worth 4s. a year.

7. THE FOURTH TENEMENT.

About 1240 Laurence Roscelin gave to the Hospital a rent of 2s. from the house of Gilbert le Bolter and Edelina his wife (see no. 81) between the capital messuage of Laurence and the house of Robert Rufus. In 1293 this quitrent was paid by Adam the tailor and Edelina his wife, the rental adding that they held only for the term of the life of Edelina. It is possible that Edelina had bequeathed to the Hospital this and the previous tenement, but retained them for her life. In 1325 the Hospital had the freehold of the house 'once of Adam Scissor'. We assume that the following deed has reference to this tenement because of the name Edred (see no. 86). If this is correct, the house belonged to Edred about 1220, and to Gilbert the Bolter and Edelina his wife about 1250. Possibly on the death of Gilbert, his wife married John de Lacy, and finally Adam the Tailor.

Sciunt tam presentes quam futuri quod ego Elwinus Turnur dedi, concessi & hac presenti carta mea confirmaui Edredo de Londoniis & heredibus suis terram meam extra portam orientalem Oxonie infra paruum pontem que iacet inter terram Galfridi Godechnaue & terram Galfridi Archerii, habendam & tenendam de me & heredibus meis ipse & heredes sui imperpetuum iure hereditario libere & quiete, singulis annis reddendo michi & heredibus meis ipse & heredes sui iii solidos sterlingorum & pro seruicio trium dierum michi & heredibus meis annuatim impendendo, uidelicet ad festum sancti Michaelis ix denarios, ad Natale ix denarios, ad Pascha ix denarios, ad festum sancti Iohannis Baptiste ix denarios pro omni alio seruicio & consuetudine & aliis demandis. Hanc autem donacionem & concessionem warantizabo ego & heredes mei sepredicto Edredo & heredibus suis contra omnes homines & omnes feminas. 8. THE FIFTH AND SIXTH TENEMENTS; THE CAPITAL MESSUAGE OF LAURENCE ROSCELIN.

The charter roll of 1246 states that, in addition to the gifts mentioned in deed no. 82, Laurence, son of Roscelin, made a grant to the Hospital of a house outside East Gate. Deed 85 A, though it is placed in the Cartulary among the deeds of Holywell, seems to be the required charter. Deed 86 shows that by the year 1247 the house was in the hands of the Hospital, and was granted away in perpetuity to Richard Marescallus, who was also known as Richard le Proud (see no. 89) at a rent of sixteen shillings. From William le Proud it passed to Richard de Walingford, who in 1271 returned it to the Hospital. Shortly afterwards it was granted to Philip le Notur by an exchange (no. 67). In 1281 it was held by two tenants, Walter Tinctor and John le Marescal, and the rental of 1293 shows that between them they paid the old rent of 16s., and held by a lease in perpetuity. At the time of the next rental it is one tenement paying a rent of 9s., and the freehold belongs to the Hospital; probably it had escheated to the Hospital for non-payment of rent. Subsequently it is called Domus Vinee, and pays a rent of 20s., and is reckoned as the fifth tenement; but probably between 1426 and 1478 it was divided again and became the fifth and sixth tenements.

9. THE SEVENTH TENEMENT.

This tenement is particularly confusing. At the back was a garden 81 feet wide and 125 feet from north to south, which was given to the Hospital in 1347; it extended behind the seventh and the eighth tenements. In front there were several shops. About 1240 the owner was Walter Godecnavé (see no. 82), and the rental of 1293 has an entry next after tenements five and six 'de tenemento quod erat quondam Walteri Godecnavé nichil invenimus'. The following deeds show that by 1333 the owner was Matilda, widow of Thomas le Barber, and the details mentioned in deeds nos. 96 and 97 will be satisfied if it consisted of a cottage or shop held by William le Dyer on the east, then three cottages leased by Matilda to Reginald le Dyer, then another holding of William le Dyer, then another shop leased to Reginald, then a holding of Matilda, then an aula leased to William le Dyer (see no. 96), and lastly a shop given to the Hospital by Thomas the Marshal (see nos. 113-18). Of these the 'hall with its entry' probably was situated at the back behind the cottages. The rentals show that from 1325 to 1339 the Hospital owned nothing here except the shop given by Thomas the Marshal, which is described as next to the house of Webbe. From 1339 to 1371 the Hospital had a small house next to Domus Vinee at a rent of two shillings; in the rental of 1371 we are told that Agnes le Dyer (who held Domus Vinee for her life free of rent) held also this small tenement for her life. By 1376 she was dead, and the rent had risen to seven shillings. It looks as if on the death of Agnes le Dyer part of her property came to the Hospital. The western part of the tenement formed domus octava, and was not acquired for another century.

10. THE EIGHTH TENEMENT.

The following deeds refer to a tenement which was bought by Magdalen College in 1465 for 40 marks. The price was high if we may judge of the value of the tenement from the fact that the rent of it in 1478 was only one mark. Although the following deeds do not state where the tenement was, the use of the word proxima in the rentals proves that in 1426 the first seven tenements were adjacent, and also the last six tenements, and that the gap was here. We have confirmations of this conclusion in the mention of Henry Carpenter (see note to no. 100), and in the statement in the rental of 1426 that the shop described in deeds 113-18 was 'juxta tenementum Iohannis Chamberleyn' (see no. 104).

¹ Possibly a mistake of the clerk for Drugo. The name was so unusual that, when Drugo Barentyne was admitted a freeman of the City of London, the clerk in error entered him as Andrew, not knowing the name Drew (Cal. of Letter Books of City of London, Book I, p. 6).

11. THE SHOP GIVEN BY MARSHALL.

In 1302 Thomas, son of John le Mareschal, gave to the Hospital a seld between the tenement of Thomas de Couele and the tenement of Alice le Webbe (see no. 4). The following deeds show that it was originally part of the tenement of Alice le Webbe, and was detached in 1273 (see no. 119). Apparently the two were never reunited; at all events, as late as the rental of 1426 they were separate. The seld must have been larger than usual, to judge from the rent that was paid. The tenant on the east was originally Walter Godecnave (see nos. 82 and 117); afterwards John de Tame; and in 1302 Thomas de Couele, barber. It is uncertain whether deed no. 118 refers to this tenement, but as the rentals show that outside East Gate there was no increase of the property of the Hospital between 1293 and 1325, except the shop that was given in 1302 by Thomas the Marshall, it seems necessary to assign the deed to this property. Walter de Tottleley might be identical with Walter Godecnave, and Thomas de Wyppeley may have had some claim on the tenement, such as a small quitrent. The language of the deed, with the words 'quietum clamavi', suits such a supposition.

16. TENEMENT ONCE OF ROGER LE SAUMPLER.

The earlier rentals state that tenements 15 and 16 consisted of two selds with a solar above; as the solar by itself was rented at six shillings in 1328 it must have been large, and the selds each rented at four shillings must also have been large. The easternmost of the selds is probably described in deeds 131-6; the westernmost is traced in the following deeds. There is no deed to show how it originally became the property of the Hospital. It was granted away in perpetuity in 1247, and again in 1276, and in each case it soon returned into the possession of the Hospital.

17. THE CORNER HOUSE WITH THE FORGE.

The corner tenement was given to the Hospital by Thomas, son of John le Mareschal, in 1302 (see charter no. 4), when it was described as a house in the corner between Nicholas, son of John le Mareschal, on the east and the road on the west. In the rentals it is described as 'the house with the forge', and the occupier, it will be noticed, generally bore the name of Mareschal or Faber. Thus in 1247 it was held by Adam Faber (see no. 137), and afterwards by persons described as Marescallus. From the following inquisition, and from the rental of 1293, we learn that the Hospital had from early time a quitrent of four shillings from this tenement. Deed no. 71 says that Adam Faber held the land from the Hospital by charter.

Item dicunt quod tres alie selde tenentur de communitate ville Oxonie per seruicium xii denariorum per annum & valent per annum in omnibus exitibus novem solidos. Preterea dicunt quod residue quatuor selde & predicta acra terre & predicta acra prati non sunt infra libertatem ville Oxonie; ideo nichil inde sciunt.

¹ See no. 15. On July 3, 1300, the king had issued a writ to hold an inquisition whether it would be to his damage if Thomas le Mareschal gave a messuage, eight selds, one acre of land, one acre of meadow, and 7*d.* of rent in the suburb of Oxford, in Bruggesete, in Mershtone, and in Cowley to the warden and brethren of the Hospital of St. John. The corresponding inquisition (see no. 15) is of 1300, but this is undated. It informs us that the Hospital gave to Thomas le Mareschal a house in exchange. This house was in All Saints parish; see no. 535.

18. THREE SHOPS OUTSIDE EAST GATE.

This site was granted in 1274 by the Town to John Marescallus at a perpetual rent of one shilling. His son granted it, with shops erected on it, to the Hospital by deed no. 4. The shops were at first worth five shillings each. In the rentals of 1478 and 1484 they paid no rent, being vacant; in 1487 they paid no rent 'quia non edificantur'. They are described at that time as being 'iuxta fontem', which perhaps means 'near the pond'; there is reason to think that behind them and to the north of them there was a fish pond. Between 1487 and 1507 Magdalen allowed this property to revert to the Town by neglecting to pay the quitrent. The following deed shows that an average shop was about 8 feet by 12 feet.

20. UNIDENTIFIED DEEDS; OUTSIDE EAST GATE.

Deeds 151-3 deal with a tenement outside East Gate, which was given to the Hospital in 1235, but cannot be located. Possibly it was on the site where the Hospital was subsequently built, or it may have been in Long Wall. The shop of deed no. 150 might have occupied a portion of the frontage of one of the tenements of the Hospital on the north side of the road. In many cases a part of the frontage of a house was given up to shops.

There is nothing to show whether the shop was on the north side or the south side of the road, or how or when it became the property of the Hospital. It would be natural to assign this deed to the site of the seventh and eighth tenements, but it is impossible that any shop on that site can have had tenements of the Hospital on both sides as early as 1331.

IV. ST. PETER IN THE EAST;

LEASES OF TENEMENTS ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE ROAD. 154-8.

The rentals of 1478 and 1487 show that between these dates the houses from the College to Long Wall were pulled down and rebuilt. In 1478 there were fourteen tenements in this row, but by 1487 the first four at the east end had been turned into Magdalen Hall, and the remaining ten had been reduced to seven. We know from old maps that these houses stood back from the road, and we learn from a lease that in 1519 they were known as 'The Newe Rewe'. In front of them was a gravel walk, and between the walk and the road was a ditch, which some, if not all, of the tenants were bound to scour, when necessary.

Magdalen Hall paid a rent of £2 a year to the College, but did not hold by lease. In the charters, rentals, and leases there is nothing which bears on the relationship between Magdalen Hall and Magdalen College.

MANCIPLE'S TENEMENT.

Next to Magdalen Hall was a tenement called Manciple's: in 1507 and subsequent years it was held by Thomas Pantre, and the leases from 1594 to 1632 suggest that the President's servant was allowed the privilege of a lease of this tenement on favourable terms. By means of the survey of 1772 and of the leases we are able to reconstruct its plan. It had a frontage on the street of eleven yards, but the garden behind, as we learn from a lease of 1762, was twenty yards wide. The tenement measured from north to south more than eighty yards, and extended to the Grove. On the east side of the holding were four tenements running from south to north, which must have been reached through an archway. On the west side was a fifth tenement facing the street, and as the lease of 1748 gives it a frontage of eight feet, while the survey of 1772 assigns to it fifteen feet, we assume that the archway was seven feet wide, and that the tenement extended over the arch. In 1762 the Principal of Magdalen Hall acquired a lease of the back portions of this holding, and in 1771 he obtained a lease of the next tenement on the west, extending as far as what is now the College stables. The rent of Manciple's tenement was always thirty shillings. After 1776 the leases of the three parts into which the tenement had been divided were not renewed, and the Fine Book says that when the leases fell in, part of the site was built upon, and part formed the garden of the President.

PARRETT'S TENEMENT.

Next to Manciple's tenement was a tenement which was leased to the family of Parrett from 1519 to 1607, and subsequently was known as Parrett's tenement. It had previously been called 'The Berehouse', and had been occupied by Martin Bereman. From the survey of 1772 we gather that it had a frontage of more than fifteen yards, and contained by that time two tenements. It may be added that the name Parrett may be spelt in nine ways, as each of the vowels might be represented by a, e, or o, though, as a matter of fact, it is doubtful if the spellings Porrat or Porrot occur.

THE SITE OF THE COLLEGE STABLES.

Next to Parrett's tenement was a tenement, which was originally two, as we learn from the rentals and the earliest leases. The series of leases ends at 1724, and we learn from the Fine Book that the lease was not renewed. Apparently in 1764, when the lease terminated, or perhaps earlier, the College converted this holding into stables, which, according to the survey of 1772, had a frontage on the street of fourteen yards.

¹ The survey of Aug. 1772 places Magdalen College stables on the east of Musgrove. It is just possible that the stables were built between Dec. 1771 and Aug. 1772, Dr. Dennison surrendering part of his land, but it is more likely that the meaning of the lease of 1771 is that Musgrove's was the next house on the west, no account being taken of the stables. It appears from the Fine Book that the lease was renewed to Dr. Dennison in December, 1785, that in 1787 it was in the occupation of William Dry, and that when the lease terminated in 1825 the site was 'built upon by the College'.

Leases.

BETWEEN THE STABLES AND THE GREYHOUND.

The next tenement was also originally two, rented at 20s. and 18s. respectively, but from 1554 they were united; yet it appears from the survey of 1772 that there were two houses in the one lease, each with a frontage of about nine yards. The Fine Book says that this tenement was pulled down in 1846.

THE GREYHOUND.

The Greyhound Inn, now part of the site of Magdalen College School, had a frontage of eleven yards towards High Street, and sixty-four yards towards Long Wall. At first it bore the name of 'The Cardinal's Hat', as we learn from a lease of the next tenement of the year 17 Hen. VIII, but by 1548 the name was 'The Greyhound'. According to the rentals, the rent of the tenement never changed from 1487; it was always 66s. 8d.; but the leases of 1556-81 give another figure, with which the rentals do not agree. From the year 1585 onwards the tenant of 'The Greyhound' was allowed a lease of one half of the meadow within Addison's Walk for a rent of 16s. 8d., the other half being taken by the tenant of 'The Angel'; in consequence the two halves were known as Greyhound Mead and Angel Mead.

V. ST. PETER IN THE EAST;

WITHIN EAST GATE; ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF HIGH STREET. 159-265.

I. BOSTER HALL; 86 AND 87 HIGH STREET.

At the time of the Hundred Rolls (1279), and for the next eighty years, the Hospital had only a quitrent of 24s. on this tenement; but in 1349 it was given to the Hospital by Peter de Groete, and in the rentals it appears from that date among the Academic Halls at a rent of 40s. It is noteworthy that the Hospital enjoyed possession for nearly twenty years (1349-67) before the royal licence was obtained to acquire it (see no. 185). The name of the hall was derived from William de Borstalle, who occupied it in 1293, and about the middle of the fourteenth century the name was corrupted to Boster Hall. As the population of Oxford decreased and halls fell into decay, first the site of Hare Hall was added to Boster Hall, and subsequently part of the site of Nightingale Hall.

It is unknown how the Hospital obtained its original rent in Boster Hall, but it is possible that no. 159 supplies the information. The deed mentions no parish, and is so early that we get no help from the rentals or the Hundred Rolls; but a document of 1272 (Liber Albus, p. 18), speaking of a tenement, which we know to be 85 High Street, says that it was next to the land which William de Chilton held under Henry de Witefeld. The following deed, if it refers to Boster Hall, states that the adjacent tenement belonged to the fee of Witefeld; and we must assume that Boster Hall as well was of this fee, and that Richard, son of Amfrid, holding under Henry de Witefeld, had granted his property to another for a perpetual rent of 24s.; so that the following deed did not grant the freehold, but only a rent of 24s. An Oseney deed supplies some reason for thinking that Eilwin le Turnur held no. 88 High Street, now the New Buildings of University College.

3. THE ANGEL; 82 HIGH STREET.

In 1279 and 1293 this house was owned by John Kepeharm, and from him it was sometimes called Aula Kepeharm; but there is no reason to think that it was an Academic Hall. It was originally given by John Pilet, but must have been alienated for a perpetual rent of 6s. It was finally obtained by the Hospital from Joan Brayles in 1364, and although the royal licence to hold it was not given until 1370, the Hospital granted a lease of it in 1364. We notice that it was known as The Tabard in 1418, and that it changed its name to The Angel before 1523. Like Boster Hall it absorbed several tenements to the south of it, and finally extended as far as Merton Street.

4. RAM ALLEY AND HOUSE; 80 HIGH STREET.

Between Bradwell Hall on the west and a tenement of Eynsham on the east, was a house of which we have some deeds, though it is not known by whom it was given to the Hospital. It is not mentioned in the rental of 1427, but it occurs in the next rental, which is of about 1450. It consisted probably at that time not only of a house in High Street, but also of two or three gardens in Harehall Lane. Subsequently the tenement was enlarged by the addition of the site of Pencrych Hall, and of tenements in King Street, and when houses were built at the back, a passage was made from High Street to reach them, known as Ram Alley.

5. THE HOUSE OF JOHN FILEKING; 79 HIGH STREET.

In 1281 John Fileking gave a rent of 1*d.* from a house in High Street. The rental of 1293 says that it was on the south side of the street and that it was occupied by Martin Exemplator. The only question is whether it was 79 or 80 High Street; but the names of the payers between 1367 and 1377 do not correspond with the known occupants of no. 80; it is therefore to be identified with no. 79. The payment was not received after 1377.

6. DOMUS AVERHAM; 78 HIGH STREET.

A small tenement, which lay to the east of a tenement of Eynsham, paid a quitrent of 4s. a year to the Hospital in the rental of 1293 and the Hundred Rolls of 1279. We do not know how this rent was obtained. In the rentals it is called domus le Combar, and owed a quitrent of eight pence to the Bishop of Winchester. Deed no. 71 mentions the house of Henry le Comber. It was finally acquired by the Hospital in 1370

(no. 205), at which time it was only a toft according to the inquisition (no. 185), and worth nothing beyond the rent of four shillings. According to the rentals the Hospital acquired possession shortly after Michaelmas 1367, and by Christmas had erected two shops on the site, which were let for twelve shillings each. It was bounded on the south by a tenement of St. Frideswide in King Street, subsequently the property of Magdalen College, and known as the Coach and Horses Inn. It was sold by Magdalen to the University in 1871.

7. HAREHALL LANE.

This lane, being the eastern portion of Kibold Street, extended from Logic Lane, which was known as Horsemull Lane, Horseman Lane, or Jawdewyn's Lane, as far as the road by the City Wall. By the middle of the fifteenth century all the houses in this lane had fallen into decay except Harehall on the north side, and Nightingale Hall and Pencrych Hall on the south side, and as these halls could be reached from other roads, the Hospital of St. John, which owned all the land on both sides of the lane, obtained permission from the Town to close it, and appropriate it. The Town was unable to sell the land, as it was the property of the King, held of him by the Town by a perpetual lease; consequently it was granted at a perpetual rent of two shillings. The King within a few weeks issued Letters Patent to confirm the arrangement, having been informed that the lane was frequented by night-walkers, 'to the annoyance of the virtuous students' in the halls in that lane, and he pardoned the transgression of the Statute of Mortmain. In 1448, when John Godmanstone required the whole site from High Street to Merton Street for the foundation of Magdalen Hall, the lane was granted to him at a rent of four shillings, of which two shillings was due to the Town and two shillings to the Hospital. The west end of Harehall Lane is marked by the turn in Logic Lane; the east end must have been just to the north of the tenement called Tanner's Yard in the Ordnance Survey. This is proved by a quitrent paid to New College; in the fourteenth century it was paid from the corner tenement on the south side of Harehall Lane, but about 1670 it was paid by William Aylworth, who (see no. 247) held the tenement subsequently known as Tanner's Yard.

8. HORSEMULL HALL.

By deed no. 213 Henry Simeon gave to the Hospital a corner tenement which in no. 215 is described in detail as a hall behind the Horsemill and situated at the corner of Kibald Street. There can be little doubt that we may locate here the 'Horsemulle halle' which is mentioned in the rental of 1293; in the rental of 1325 the name does not occur, but a new name, Hare Hall, appears; and it is known that Hare Hall was situated in Logic Lane at the junction of Kibald Street.

9. VINE OR WINE HALL.

In the rental of 1293 Vine Hall, paying a rent of 17s., is placed between Black Hall and Horsemull Hall. It was an academic hall in 1305, when we hear in a coroner's inquest of the manciple of 'la Vigne hall in Kibald Street' (Records of Mediaeval Oxford, p. 13); but in the rental of 1325 it is no longer an academic hall, but placed among the ordinary tenements.

² This is certainly written by the scribe of the Cartulary, and the spelling

'parrochia' is peculiar to him. Seal, green, circular, $\frac{1}{2}$ in., a coat of arms, but too small to be read.

Deed no. 217 shows that it was on the north side of Kibald Street, and there can be little doubt that it was adjacent to Horsemull Hall, and that in 1351, at which date the name disappears from the rentals, the site was added to Hare Hall.

There were other Vine Halls in Oxford; one in Ship Street was corrupted into White Hall; there was another at the south-west corner of Peckwater Quadrangle; and one or more in the parish of St. Peter le Bailey. In every case the name appears to be derived from the word wine (or vin), not from a vine.

10. BAGGARD'S TENEMENT.

Next to the east of Wine Hall was a piece of land which at one time Robert Baggard held under the Hospital. As he owed arrears of rent amounting to twelve shillings, shortly before his death he surrendered his rights to the Hospital on condition that the debt was remitted. From this we gather that the tenement was not valuable or large. In the Hundred Rolls it is described as an area worth one shilling a year. In the rental of 1293 it may be identified with the tenement of Edith Lotrix, paying a rent of 5s.; in subsequent rentals it is two small houses paying 4s. and 2s., which, in the rental of 1346, are described as next to Vine Hall. After the Black Death we lose trace of it, and it must ultimately have become the western portion of the yard or garden of the Tabard.

11. LAND OF STEPHEN LE DEVEENEYS.

East of the tenement of Baggard came the holding which in the rentals is described as the house of Thomas de Orlens. We do not know how the Hospital obtained it, but we have deeds of 1242-6 and 1251-4, by which the Hospital granted away the two moieties to Stephen le Deveneys, retaining only a quitrent of ten shillings. A third messuage seems to have been acquired by Stephen from Thomas of Winchendon, and if we may trust the wording of the Hundred Rolls, they had been reduced in 1279 to two tenements held at that time by Thomas de Orlens under Alice, daughter of Stephen. In the rentals from 1293 to 1350 a quitrent of ten shillings was received annually from the tenement of Thomas de Orlens, but no names are mentioned. It appears from the following deeds that it passed through the hands of Richard of Suffolk, William de Oseberstone, John de Adynton, and Thomas Campyon. The Black Death caused property in Oxford, especially in the north-east and south-east corners, to become of little value; and this tenement must have reverted to the hands of the Hospital for non-payment of the quitrent. Its situation must have been behind the Angel, and behind the western portion of Bradwell Hall ; part of it was alienated for a time (see no. 341), but was recovered before 1450 (see nos. 191-5).

¹ Seal, circular, $1\frac{1}{8}$ in., apparently an ass; S' ALIC' REL' ROB' BAGGARD. By these two deeds we learn that Robert Baggard died between Mich. 1275 and Mich. 1276.

12. BRONDESHALL, THE TENEMENT OF JOHN CURCY.

On the east of Stephen the Mason there were in 1279 (Hund. Rolls, ii. 800) two tenements before the corner tenement was reached; the first was held by Alice Sprot of the gift of Stephen the Mason, paying 6*d.* to Stephen the Bookbinder, and was worth 6*d.* more; the second was held by Joan de Perham, and paid 8*d.* to Richard Waldri and 2*s.* to Katerina Curcy. In deed no. 193 we learn that no. 80 High Street was bounded on the south by the tenement of Stephen de Berham (= Perham). In 1448 (deed no. 252) these properties belonged to the Hospital; but there is no record to say how they were obtained. In deed no. 341 we see William le Hunte, who was owner of no. 80 High Street, acquiring from the

Hospital a garden which lay to the south of Bradwell Hall, and probably he owned the small tenement once of Alice Sprot, and the larger tenement once of Joan de Perham; and when the Hospital acquired no. 80 High Street these tenements were acquired also.

To the east of this there was the corner tenement bounded by the road on the east, Kibald Street on the south, and land of the Priory of St. Frideswide on the north. In 1448 it was two gardens facing the wall (see no. 252). We do not know how it was acquired. Deed no. 588 shows that in 1267 the Hospital was in possession of the rent of 13s. 4d., which had belonged to Andrew Halegod, and that the house itself was the property of Agnes Log, but as the Hospital received from Katerina Curcy her widow's third in the property, it must have had a prospect of acquiring the remainder from Agnes Log. In the rental of 1293 it seems to be two halls, Black Hall being in Kibald Street, and the other hall, which has no name, being in what is now King Street. In 1325 Black Hall alone is mentioned, and after 1349 it must have been a very small house, as the rent was only 5s.. It came to an end about the beginning of the reign of Richard II.

North of this holding was a tenement of St. Frideswide's, which is mentioned in no. 252. It is not certain when it passed into the possession of Magdalen, but deed no. 968 records that shortly before 1483 Magdalen had granted to St. Frideswide's a property in St. Ebbe's in exchange for 'a ground in the parish of St. John against the east end of Crope Lane'. Grove Street has no east end, but perhaps the name was transferred to Kibald Street. There remains the difficulty that this property of St. Frideswide's was in St. Peter's parish, not St. John's.

13. CHIMNEY HALL.

We now pass to the south side of Harehall Lane. In 1345 the Hospital obtained from Queen's College a piece of land on the south side of the lane at its east end, measuring 85 feet by 41 feet. There is no record of this acquisition among the deeds of the Hospital, but we have knowledge of it from a deed at Queen's College. This property, or one of the cottages standing on it, had already paid a quitrent of 3s. a year to the Hospital, as we learn from the rentals, where it is called the house of Thomas the Spicer; how the rent was acquired we do not know. The Hospital had also two or more cottages on the south side of Harehall Lane, as the rentals show, but we have no details about their position.

In St. John's Street (i. e. Merton Street), between Logic Lane and the end of the street, the Hospital had three halls, according to the rental of 1293, Chimney Hall, Nightingale Hall, and a hall at the corner, known subsequently as Croys Hall; there were in addition five or six cottages. Of these halls Chimney Hall was by far the most valuable, paying a rent of 53s. 4d.; for which reason the following deed, which mentions a rent of 40s., can refer to no other hall. Magister Walter de Cherlebury, who is mentioned in the deed, was Walter de sancto Edmundo, vicar of Charlbury, official of Adam de sancto Edmundo, Archdeacon of Oxford, his brother, and executor to him after his death.¹ The *Hundred Rolls*² inform us that the Hospital held a tenement in the parish of St. Peter in the south-east ward worth 40s. a year, by the legacy of Adam de sancto Edmundo; the value of the tenement shows that the reference must be to

Chimney Hall. If it was a legacy, we can understand why there is no deed of gift.

The rentals reckon Chimney Hall as in the parish of St. Peter, but deed no. 252 places both Chimney Hall and Nightingale Hall in the parish of St. John. In modern times all the houses from Logic Lane eastward are in St. Peter's, but the following deeds distinctly assert that some of the houses to the east of Logic Lane were in St. John's parish. It is evident that the original parish boundary has been altered at this point, and it is probable that in the earliest times all the tenements in Merton Street were in St. John's parish, and those which stood on the south side of Harehall Lane were in St. Peter's.

Chimney Hall was in existence as an academic hall as late as the rental of 1426. It will be noticed subsequently (see nos. 602-9) that there was another Chimney Hall not many yards distant, on the west side of Logic Lane; there was another, or even two, in Cheney Lane, and nos. 44 and 45 High Street was known as Chimney Hall in the fourteenth century.

14. NIGHTINGALE HALL.

The four following deeds seem to refer to one tenement, the two first being about its southern half, the two others mainly about the northern half. The two first deeds say that it was next on one side to a corner house, while the others describe it as next to the house of Magister Walterus de sancto Edmundo (i. e. Chimney Hall). This proves that Chimney Hall reached to Logic Lane, and that these four deeds are about the site, or part of the site, of Nightingale Hall, which we know was next to Chimney Hall. It appears that the site was originally given to the Hospital about 1233, and having been alienated was recovered in 1251. The hall came to end about 1460.

15. CROSS HALL, PENKRYCH HALL, AND OTHER TENEMENTS.

The succession of houses in St. John's Street as we pass eastward from Nightingale Hall is by no means certain, but for want of a better hypothesis it is suggested that the tenement of Henricus Fulconis, extending as far north as Kibold Street, passed to Letitia, daughter of Alicia Fulconis; by her gift it passed to the Hospital (no. 235). Next was a tenement of Wido Sutor, between the corner tenement on the east and Henricus Fulconis on the west (nos. 236-8). At the corner, subsequently the site of Cross Hall, was the tenement of Walter Ing. If Walter, son of John, is the same as Walter Ing, the tenement passed to Henry, son of Roscelin of Holywell, but we have no deed by which it came to the Hospital. One discordance may be pointed out. Walter, son of John, says that the house of Wido Sutor, which was next to him, was in the parish of St. John, whereas the deed of Wido Sutor, which we assign to that tenement, speaks of it as in the parish of St. Peter.

The corner tenement by the Town Walls was a very small academic hall, which in 1293 was described as 'aula iuxta angulum'; in the rental of 1325 it is Aula Crucis, but it is no longer an academic hall. In 1375 the site is a garden occupied by Richard Pencriche. At some date soon after the rental of 1426, it became an academic hall, and was occupied by Mag. Kylyou in 1438 under the name of Penkrych Hall (Munim. Acad., p. 520), and it was in existence in 1448 (see no. 252); shortly afterwards it was a garden.

16. WEST OF NIGHTINGALE HALL.

There seem to have been three or four small tenements to the south of Chimney Hall. The first deed may refer to a tenement next to the site of Nightingale Hall, which was held at one time by William of Holywell (see no. 233). The tenement of Walter Bolle would be next on the west. Then the tenement of Hugo de Hakeburne. It is true that by this arrangement Chimney Hall is given little or no frontage on St. John's Street, but this is not a serious matter. The rentals show that these small houses fell into decay during the fourteenth century. In 1432 Merton renounced all claim to a garden on the east side of Logic Lane (see no. 595); on what ground the claim was made, we do not know.

17. LEASES OF LEKE'S TENEMENT. 244-51.

In 1670 this large tenement (see no. 198) was divided into eight leases. The holdings were altered so much from time to time, that it is only by the help of the Fine Book that the successive leases can be identified. The whole site together with the Angel was sold to the University by Magdalen College in 1871.

244.

Leases of nos. 13-15 Merton Street.

The southwest portion was leased to Walter Combes at a rent of 5s. 8d.; it was bounded by Merton Street on the south, and the stables of the Angel on the west. In 1726 some addition may have been made to the holding, as the rent was raised to 6*s.*, while the rent of the tenement next on the east was reduced by fourpence. In 1785 the original lease expired, and a new lease was granted at a rent of £8 7*s.*, the tenement being enlarged by part of the garden of Jane Collinson. In 1799 the eastern portion, no. 15 Merton Street, was separated, the rent being 25*s.* at first, and subsequently £4. The remainder, which is described as three tenements, was leased to Thomas Dry in 1799 and 1813, but in 1827 one of the three tenements was added to the stable-yard of the Angel, and the rent of the Angel was raised.

18. DEEDS ABOUT MAGDALEN HALL. 252-65.

The first Magdalen Hall was founded by William Waynflete in 1448, and existed for about nine years. The following deeds show that the plan of the Bishop was not only to acquire the block of land between Logic Lane and the Town Walls, but also all the land on the west of Logic Lane as far as Great University Hall. It does not appear that the plan was carried out completely, but the President of Magdalen Hall, as the following deeds show, had a permanent lease of all the tenements from Logic Lane to the Tabard (or Angel), and of one tenement on the other side of the lane, besides the tenements which belonged to the Hospital. The buildings occupied by the members of the Hall were Boster Hall, Hare Hall, and the Sarson Head, next to Boster Hall.

VI. ST. PETER IN THE EAST;

WITHIN THE WALL; THE NORTH SIDE OF HIGH STREET, BEGINNING AT THE WEST.

1. NO. 34 HIGH STREET.

The first tenement within the parish of St. Peter in the East, next to the boundary of St. Mary's parish, was Drowda Hall; on the east of it were four tenements which belonged to the Hospital, of which the easternmost was sold to Queen's College in 1709, and the other three in 1908. The first tenement, next to Drowda Hall, consisted at first of two shops, which in the fifteenth century became three; in the sixteenth century it was once more two. From the rental of 1293 we conclude that at that time behind the two shops there was an academic hall, occupied by the Vicar of Elsefield, but there is no mention of it subsequently. The tenement had only a small garden, and was bounded on the north by the garden of no. 35 High Street. The following deeds show that it was originally granted to the Hospital by Ailwin le Turner, and again in 1275 by Henry de Lincolnia, alias de Swapham.

¹ Probably Roger the Turner, who owned the house next on the east: see no. 267. It is by no means certain that this deed refers to no. 34 High Street, but it is known that the house next to Drowda Hall once belonged to Ailwin le Turnur (Eynsham Cart. ii. 175). From the word 'uicinior' we conclude that Drowda Hall also was his property, but of this there is no other evidence.

² Possibly White Hall (46 and 47

High Street). It was owned at this time by Robert Log, and in early times paid a quitrent of 14*d.* to the Hospital; but no surviving deeds indicate that it had the neighbours that are mentioned here. The houses called Netherwindmill and St. Nicholas Entry (see nos. 301, 305), which paid quitrents to the Hospital, were also at this time owned by members of the family of Log.

In 1293 it is called 'the hall of the Vicar of Elsefield', but in 1325 it has the name 'aula Georgii', and is entered among the academic halls until 1351; the rent 28s. shows that it was not large, but there were two shops 'subtus aulam Georgii', which were let independently. This house is interesting as the site of the first Oxford printing press; in the rental of 1478 it is the tenement which 'Ioh. Ducheman' lately held; in 1480 it is the house of 'Dyryke Dowcherman'; in 1482 'Dyryk Rode'. There can be little doubt that this is Theodoric Rood of Cologne, the first known printer at Oxford. In 1484 and 1487 the tenant is John Missenden, tailor; the next rental is 1507. The rental before 1478 is of about 1450, when John Mathew was tenant. Theodoric Rood is known to have been printing at Oxford in 1481 and 1485, but in the latter year he was in partnership with an Englishman named Thomas Hunt, and no doubt he moved his press between these two dates (see Madan's Early Oxford Press (O. H. S.), pp. 241-62). It will be noticed that the garden behind 34-6 High Street was sold to Queen's College in 1812.

3. THE BELL; NOS. 37 AND 38 HIGH STREET.

After many changes this house finally became the property of the Hospital by the gift of John Fileking in 1282, and was often called domus Fileking in the rentals. In the fifteenth century it was called The Bell, but does not appear to have been an inn or tavern in the seventeenth century. In 1725 it was leased to Queen's College, and the northern part of it was made the Provost's garden. We learn from the rentals that a quitrent of half a mark on this tenement, of which there is mention as early as 1220, was paid in 1328 to 'the heirs of Henry the Rich', and in 1374 to John de Northampton, town-clerk; it was acquired by Magdalen College in 1496 from Queen's College (see no. 418).

² At the foot 'Transcrib'. The usual seal of Henry Simeon; grey wax with a green varnish. The writing is the hand of Willelmus Clericus. It is difficult to understand the purpose or value of this deed. From what follows it appears that as late as 1237 the Hospital had no financial interest in this tenement, and it is also obvious that Henry Simeon surrendered no money; he retained the rent of 6s. 8d., and this was all he had in the time of the previous deed. A possible explanation is that Robert Waldri promised that the Hospital should have his house after his death, and that the Hospital by this deed took the precaution beforehand to secure the feudal lordship from Henry Simeon. The fact that there is no clause of warranty suggests that Henry Simeon was not transferring the tenement itself, nor was it his at this time. The date of the deed cannot be later than Michaelmas, 1226.

4. KATHERINE'S HALL.

This was a narrow tenement, being 23 feet wide, as we learn from the lease of 1709, by which it was leased to Queen's College in perpetuity. At that time the College was being rebuilt, and this tenement was included in the site. In the earliest rentals it is called Aula Waldri, but from 1325 the name is Aula Katherine. It was an academic hall as late as 1376, but not in 1384. It consisted of the hall behind and two shops in front, which were let independently. Its narrow shape is explained by the fact that it was the western half of a large tenement (see no. 293) of which the eastern half was given to Oseney, and was known as Wilby Hall.

¹ At the foot 'Transcrib'. The deed is in the hand of Galf' Belewe. This and the next deed are concerned not with Katherine's Hall but with Wilby Hall, adjoining on the east, which became the property of Oseney. The tenement of Simon le Cordwainer was divided between his two daughters; Matildis had the west portion and Lucia the east. The former was granted to the Hospital and was occupied by Richard Waldri; the latter, as we learn from Oseney deeds, was granted by Lucia to Thomas Scriptor for a perpetual rent of ten shillings; and from the same source we learn that it belonged to magister Jordannus about the years 1246-66. Our deed cannot be about Katherine's Hall; for the deeds already printed show that Richard Waldri did not hold at any time the tenement called domus Fileking. We cannot tell what became of this rent of ten shillings; in 1285 it was paid by Oseney to Sara, daughter of William le Marshal. The Hospital may have exchanged the rent for some rent or property of the Marshals.

² Seal, light green, pointed oval, 1 1/4 in. x 7/8 in., a fleur-de-lis, S' IOH'NIS SCRIPTORIS. The deed is imperfect. John had no rights to surrender; his father had sold the house twenty years earlier, as we learn from Oseney deeds. In the hand of Galfridus Belewe.

5 AND 6. DOMUS GLATTON AND ST. NICHOLAS ENTRY.

East of Wilby Hall came three tenements, each of them paying a quit-rent to the Hospital. Domus Glatton, which was next to Wilby Hall, paid 2s. 10d. in 1293, when Alicia le Mercer was the owner; in all the later rentals the sum is two shillings. Probably the Hospital obtained this money by deed no. 291, under the words 'half the service of Ernisius le Turnur'; for we know from Oseney deeds that Ernisius occupied this house. The name 'domus Glatton' is only found in the deeds and accounts of Queen's College, and Nicholas de Glatton did not hold it until the fourteenth century.

Next was a hall called St. Nicholas Entry, from which the Hospital received ten shillings. It is not known how this rent was obtained, but it may have been by the gift of Henry, son of Ailwin le Turnur. The rent is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls of 1279, where we learn that Elyas le Quilter paid to the Hospital ten shillings a year from the house next to Alicia le Mercer. A deed of 1307 shows an arrangement that was made about this rent.

7. NETHER WINDMILL.

Next to St. Nicholas Entry was a tenement called Nether Windmill in the rentals of the Hospital, but Windmill Hall in the records of Queen's College; from this the Hospital received a rent of 3s. 4d.; it is uncertain how it was obtained, but if the following deeds refer to this tenement, the sometimes known as Wilby's Court.

² With two tags for the seals.

tenement was acquired by Ailwin Turnur before 1209; his son sold it to Henry Simeon, who gave it to the Hospital. As in many other cases, it must have been granted away on a perpetual lease at a rent of 3s. 4d. There is no doubt that deed no. 305 refers to this tenement, for it is called 'domus Log' in the rental of 1293. A slight confirmation of this arrangement of the charters is found in that Thomas Submuro, who was the neighbour on the east in 1254 bore the name Thomas filius Walteri, so that he may have been son to Walterus filius Iohannis, who lived in that house before 1209.

These three tenements from which the Hospital received rents were acquired by Queen's College by 1365, and from that time the Provost of Queen's paid 15s. 4d. yearly to the Hospital, and afterwards to Magdalen, until in 1496 the quitrents were redeemed. As we learn from a deed at Queen's, Magdalen surrendered the rent of 15s. 4d. and the house at the south-east corner of the College at the junction of High Street and Queen's Lane, and received in return quitrents amounting to £1 13s. 4d. 8. THE HOUSE OF DOSIER.

The corner tenement at the junction of Queen's Lane and High Street belonged to the Hospital by the gift of Richard le Dosyer, though a rent of 4s. was due to the Hospital from this tenement for many years before. In 1293 it was a house held by Henry Gobiun, for which reason it was generally known in the rentals as Domus Gobiun. At first it consisted of a house and three shops, but other shops were built in Queen's Lane, and in 1351 and 1352 the tenement had eight or nine small shops. In 1496, when it consisted of a tenement and three cottages, occupied by Richard Chamberlain, it was surrendered by Magdalen to Queen's (see no. 418).

9. CHAPEL HALL; 42 AND 43 HIGH STREET.

This tenement, still the property of Magdalen, was owned by the Hospital in 1232, but it is not known how it was obtained. As early as 1263 it was known as Chapel Hall, but there is no reason to think that at that time it was an academic hall, and that it was not so from 1293 onwards is proved by the rentals. In 1232 the Hospital granted it on a perpetual lease at a rent of 20s., and in the Hundred Rolls of 1279 Thomas de Benham is the owner paying a quitrent to the Hospital of twenty shillings; but in the rental of 1293 his quitrent is thirty-two shillings. Subsequently the tenement reverted to the Hospital either by gift or for non-payment of the quitrent, and was let at a rent of twenty shillings; this rent was not altered until 1847. In the rentals of 1487 and 1507 the tenement is called 'Gramerhall', and in modern times it was called Link Lodgings, from a large building, now destroyed, which stood at the north end, adjoining Edmund Hall, erected shortly before 1683, and rented for some time by Edmund Hall. For a few years, about 1523-6, the tenant was named John de Colonia.

10. CHIMNEY HALL; 44 AND 45 HIGH STREET.

This tenement, which became the property of Queen's College in 1508, paid a quitrent to the Hospital of ten pence from the earliest rental of 1293. The following deed shows that Henry Igge paid this rent to the Hospital before 1272, and as he describes the tenement as aula it was probably already called Chimney Hall; from the rentals and from a deed at Oriel we know that it bore this name by 1340. The quitrent is recorded in the rentals as late as 1700, but as the name of the payer does not alter for the previous hundred years, it was probably unpaid after 1600. There are some deeds at Oriel which trace the history of this tenement between 1312 and 1375 (C. L. Shadwell, Muniments of Oriel, Fasc. v).

11. WHITEHALL; 46 AND 47 HIGH STREET.

This house was acquired by Magdalen probably in 1489; in the rental of 1487 there is no mention of it, but in the rental of 1507, and in subsequent years, it appears under the name of 'le Timberyard'; about the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth a house was erected, and the rent was raised to twenty shillings. In 1662 it is 'now two tenements', of which one was called 'The Eagle and Child', and in 1774, when the College sold the property, the name was still in use. In the Middle Ages the house was called Whitehall, and was used as an academic hall certainly as late as 1460. At one time it belonged to Nicholas Bishop, who has left us some facts about it in his Collectanea, from which Wood has compiled his account.³ In the thirteenth century it paid a feudal rent to the Hospital, the rental of 1293 saying that the house of I. Log paid 14*d.*; but in subsequent rentals it is omitted. The deed about Chimney Hall shows that in 1272 it was held by Agnes Log, and that the Hospital in virtue of this rent was reckoned to be the feudal lord; from Nicholas Bishop we learn that it was acquired by Robert Log about the year 1210. It is possible that deed no. 266 speaks of this tenement.

12. DOMUS PUNCHARD: 48 HIGH STREET.

The deeds show that as early as 1231 this tenement paid a rent of 12*d.* to the Hospital. In 1265 Henry Igge gave 1*d.* more; in 1279 the total quitrent was 25*d.* In 1281 it was left to the Hospital by Agnes Punchard, but the royal licence for its acquisition was not obtained until 1293 (see no. 533). In 1618 it was called the King's Arms; this was altered into Queen's Arms in the reign of Anne, and so remained. Part of the tenement, which projected to the west and bounded the timber-yard on the north, was leased to St. Edmund's Hall in 1608, and sold in 1783; the main tenement is still owned by Magdalen.

This house was granted to the Hospital in 1257, but the deed states that a rent from it was already owned by the Hospital. The tenant in 1293 was Hugo Roboru, from which the house obtained the name by which it was described in the rentals. In the leases of the nineteenth century it is called 'The Coach and Horses', and as early as 1749 it was occupied by an innholder. It still belongs to Magdalen.

14. THE LIGHT HORSEMAN; 51 AND 52 HIGH STREET.

There is no deed by which this holding was granted to the Hospital, but it may have been acquired by the will of William de Couele about 1240. In 1245 it was granted away in perpetuity, but in 1293 it was once more in the possession of the Hospital; no doubt the lease of 1245 came to an end in the natural way; as the value of houses decreased, the quitrent of 24s. was more than the rackrent was worth. In 1293 it was let at a rent of ten shillings to the widow of Hugo Molendinarius, and for this reason it was sometimes called Domus Melmaker or Domus Melmonger. It does not seem to have been a public-house until the nineteenth century.

15. SELDA COLESBOURNE; 53 HIGH STREET.

This was at first a part of the corner tenement; its early history will be found under the next tenement. In or about 1339 it became a separate holding, from which the Hospital received a quitrent of 10s.; but within a few years, when rents fell in consequence of the Black Death, the Hospital must have taken possession for non-payment of rent. It was subsequently let at an annual rent which in 1487 was 10s., and this remained unaltered until 1844.

16. THE CORNER TENEMENT; 54 AND 55 HIGH STREET.

The corner tenement originally was large, and is now represented by nos. 53, 54, 55 High Street. It is unknown how, or when, the Hospital obtained it, but it was granted away by a perpetual lease to Stephen the bookbinder in 1253 at a rent of 30s.; and in 1279 and 1293 it was in his hands, and paid this rent. In the rental of 1339 we find that the tenement had been divided, the western portion paying a quitrent of 10s., and the eastern portion a quitrent of 20s., and our deeds show that this was the arrangement in 1340, when John de Couele acquired the corner portion. Six years later, as the rental shows, the Hospital had acquired possession, and the rent of the tenement was 24s. It can be traced through the subsequent rentals, the rent decreasing to 12s. in 1487. At that figure it remained until 1842. On the eastern side of the tenement there was originally a road which ran northwards within the Town Walls, but it was granted to William of Wykeham by the Town, and was used as a backway into New College gardens.

17. LAND FACING THE EAST WALL.

The following deeds must refer to land facing the East Wall. From the Collectanea of Nicholas Bishop¹ we learn that John de Bampton acquired land facing the East Wall from John atte Yate and John de Henley in 1337 and 1342. As we know from the same source that William de Erdyntone was nephew of the wife of John de Bampton, it may be that John atte Noke and William de Erdyntone were the executors of the will of John de Bampton. The property was small; it measured $67\frac{1}{2}$ feet from N. to S., and probably about 40 ft. from E. to W.; it seems to have been situated towards the northern end of nos. 53-5 High Street.

18. ON THE SITE OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE CHAPEL.

The names of Geoffrey de Stocwell and John de Wytele enable us to locate the house of John Fileking. From records at Queen's College it is known that Geoffrey de Stocwell owned a large tenement at the north-east corner of Queen's College, and that John de Wytele was opposite St. Edmund Hall. The house of John Fileking therefore was where the east end of Queen's chapel now stands. By Sept. 23, 1345, it was two shops, measuring in all 43 feet by 21 feet, which were granted to Queen's College by the Hospital in exchange for three shops on the south side of Kybald Street at the corner over against the Town Wall. The fact that the only information of this transaction is found at Queen's College shows how unwise it would be to assume that the deeds of the Hospital are complete. In the rental of 1293 the property is two selds held by Adam Gold in the churchyard of St. Peter; in later rentals to 1339 they are called 'selde Ledbury', and it is mentioned that there was a quitrent from them of 20*d.* due to the heirs of Henry le Rich. It may be noticed that Katharine Fileking in 1285 (see no. 284) quitclaimed to the Hospital a house in the churchyard of St. Peter next to Geoffrey de Stocwell.

¹ Apparently that portion of the property which adjoined the holding of Queen's College was not conveyed to the Hospital at this time. We do not know when it was acquired by the Hospital.

19. LITTLE HAMMER HALL.

This Hall was granted by the Hospital to William of Wykeham in 1389; it lay between Great Hammer Hall on the north and Temple Hall on the south, and it was required by the Bishop when he formed the plan of building cloisters at the west end of the Chapel of New College. To obtain the necessary space he obtained permission to divert the road, and after this was carried out the rental of 1392 describes Little Hammer Hall as 'iam communis via'; in other words it lay between what is now New College Cloister on the north and the Warden's garden on the south. The name Hammer Hall was no doubt given because the original owner was named Martel. It was an academic hall until 1350; subsequently only a garden.

20. A TENEMENT IN THE CORNER OF THE CHURCHYARD.

There were three corner tenements in the churchyard of St. Peter, viz. at the north-east corner, at the north-west corner, and at the south-west corner. The tenement at the south-west corner belonged to Oseney; the tenement at the north-east corner is mentioned in nos. 359, 360; it does not appear that either of these was the tenement of Milo Martel; it is therefore probable that it was at the north-west corner, i. e. at the north-east corner of Queen's College. It must be confessed that the rentals make no mention of a tenement at this spot, but the Hospital may have alienated it before 1293. It may be noticed that, strictly speaking, there is no deed that records the gift of the tenement to the Hospital: perhaps Milo Martel gave to the Hospital the rent of 2s., and consequently the gift of Thomas de Fonte took the form of a quitclaim.

21. ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE CHURCHYARD.

It seems that there were four tenements on the south side of the churchyard; of these three came into the possession of Oseney, and formed the original Edmund Hall; the fourth, lying towards the south-east corner of the churchyard, was given to the Hospital by John de Bormingham. In the rental of 1293 it appears to be an academic hall called Hayschehalle. There is no mention of this hall, or of its site, in the next two rentals, but in 1339 'a garden by the church', rented at 4s., may represent the site. In 1351 this garden seems to be leased to the owner of Chimney Hall (44 and 45 High Street), but subsequently it seems to have been granted to New College (see below, tenement no. 25); and as the eastern part of Edmund Hall stands on the site, we must assume that New College alienated it to that Hall.

22. A HALL AT THE SOUTH-EAST CORNER OF THE CHURCHYARD.

At present it is impossible to reconstruct the geography of the north-east corner of Oxford, now the site of New College, and our evidence is very scanty. The Hundred Rolls are defective for the north-east ward, and New College has no deeds which describe the site. Even before the Black Death this part of Oxford was falling into decay, and after 1349 it was uninhabited, so that when William of Wykeham bought the land from Oseney, St. John's Hospital, and the Town, no detailed description was given. The rentals of the Hospital fail us even before 1349; for as no rent could be obtained, the tenements in many cases are omitted. For these reasons the arrangement here adopted for deeds 349-376 is made with much diffidence.

According to the rental of 1293 the Hospital had three academic halls on the east side of the churchyard, called aula in angulo, aula media, and aula Vulp. Shortly after 1293 they all fell into decay, and their site became a garden. The first hall we place on the land which was given to the Hospital by Henry Operarius about 1220. It was between land of William de Fossa (i.e. on the south) and land of Augustine of Wodeperie (on the north), and probably on the west it was bounded by the tenement of John de Bormingham, which was subsequently given to the Hospital. Probably Henry Operarius married the widow of Ernaldus of Holywell, to whom the tenement had been granted. Deed no. 351 shows that it stretched from the churchyard on the west to the Town Wall on the east.

Next on the north was a tenement of Augustine, rector of Woodperry, once of Ailwin the Turner. It extended from the churchyard eastward to the Town Wall (see no. 354). Nigel, son of Augustine, granted it to John de Iffley, and about 1263 the western part of it became the property of the Hospital. 24. TENEMENT OF STEPHEN DE BURGO.

On the north side of the last tenement was the holding of William de Chilton; this passed into the hand of Wymund Lingedraper who married Agnes, daughter of William de Chilton. A deed in the Collectanea of Nicholas Bishop (now at Cambridge) shows that Wymund in 1286 sold his property, being then only a garden, to Robert de Mershe, tailor; it is described as being on the east side of the church of St. Peter, between tenements of the Hospital of St. John on either side. 25. LAND OF MILO DE BELLOCAMPO.

This is described as 'terra angularis', having the churchyard on the west and a road on the north.

In the rental of 1339 the land on the east side of the churchyard is described as 'one garden where three halls stood', but the site is generally described as two gardens. It was so in 1382 (see no. 361), when the boundary on the south was a garden belonging to Queen's College. A few years later William of Wykeham acquired this land of Queen's College, and planned to acquire the garden belonging to the Hospital, for in 1389 he obtained a licence in Mortmain to acquire four gardens from the Hospital of St. John, of which Little Hammer Hall was one, and the others were adjacent to the churchyard of St. Peter. But it was not until 1500 that New College obtained the gardens.

26. A TENEMENT ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE CHURCHYARD.

The following five deeds refer to a piece of land which was on the north side of the churchyard; this appears in particular from no. 365. The history was as follows. We learn from the Close Rolls that on April 17, 1227, the king commanded that those houses in Oxford which were known as mural mansions should be compelled to repair that part of the wall for which they were responsible, and on Aug. 10, 1227, he issued a writ that distraint should be levied upon the defaulters. Among them we read the names of 'Mabilia, wife of William de Reyms, and Galfridus Picot'. Deed no. 364 suggests that daughter should be read for wife. The record of Domesday Book about mural mansions is that if the owner did not repair the wall when commanded, he must lose his house or forfeit forty shillings. In other words he could not be called upon to spend more than 40s. In the present instance the sum demanded was 35s., and what happened in effect was that the Hospital paid the money, and in return was allowed a perpetual rent of 4s. on the tenement. Between 1228 and 1272 the tenement was divided, and the western portion passed into the hands of Adam Cementarius. In 1278 the Hospital obtained the freehold of the eastern portion, and a rent of 4s. from the western portion. That deeds 367 and 368 refer to this tenement is proved by the rentals; for in the rental of 1293 the tenement next to Adam Cementarius is occupied by the vicar of St. Peter's at a rent of 5s., and in the rental of 1325 the occupant is Robert de Willeby. The tenement of Adam Cementarius must have been forfeited to the Hospital for non-payment of the rent, when this site

27. KOKEREL'S.

Deeds nos. 364-8 show that on the west side of the house of Adam Cementarius lay the house of the inclusa or ancess of St. Peter's; from the rentals we learn that it paid a rent of 4*d.* to the Hospital, one of the many rents of which we do not know the origin. This is probably the tenement which was given to Queen's College about 1350, described at that time as a plot of land between land of the Hospital on the east and Great Mariole Hall on the west, and paying a rent of 4*d.* to the Hospital.

Mariole Hall, which was next, paid a rent of the same amount to the Hospital. As the rentals say that it was at one time the house of Simon Excambiator, it is identical with the tenement situated in the churchyard of St. Peter, which Simon son of Roger in 1272 gave to 'the mass of St. Mary, between the tenement of the anchorite on the east, and land which was once of Godstow on the west'.² That Simon Excambiator and Simon son of Roger are the same is shown in the note before no. 784. The name Mariole Hall was no doubt given because it was the land of St. Mary; similarly a house in Cat Street, which belonged to the parish of St. Mary, was called Mariole Hall.

Further to the west lay a tenement called Kokerel's. It was given to the Hospital before 1244, and again a second time in 1271. In the rental of 1293 it pays a rent of 4*s.*, but there is no mention of it subsequently.

¹ Seal, white, pointed oval, $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. x 1 in., a bird, S' THOME FETE-PLACE. By no. 429 Thomas Fete-place quitclaimed to the Hospital all his rights in Maydenhalle; but strictly speaking he had no rights after this deed, for John de Wykewane was to hold of the chief lord, not of Thomas Fete-place.

29. OTHER TENEMENTS ON THE SITE OF NEW COLLEGE.

Beyond Maidenhall, going westward, was a tenement called Wedons-court, the property of Hugh de Wedon (see no. 372), of which we learn from an Oseney deed that in 1315 it had land of the Hospital on either side; the land on the east was Maidenhall, the land on the west is described in the rental of 1293 as 'tres domuncule nove'. Farther to the west, if we may trust the sequence of the entries in the rentals, was a tenement which paid a quitrent to the Hospital of 16*d.*; it first belonged to Margery of Cuddesdon, afterwards to William Wytewong. Facing the north wall the Hospital had two properties, as the rentals prove; the one was land once held by Juliana de Swindon, the other was a plot occupied by Magister Ricardus de Hambyri. Possibly the deed of Peter de Stocwell refers to one of these two properties, and deeds 375 and 376 must refer to the plot of Richard de Hambyri; for, as far as we know, none of the other properties of the Hospital can have had a holding of Oseney on the east side, and land of the Hospital on the west. It must, however, be remembered that the Hospital had properties on this site of which there is no trace in the rentals. Thus an Oseney deed of 1216-26 mentions a tenement of Oseney between the town wall and St. Peter's Church which paid a quitrent of 26*d.* to the Hospital, but the payment must have ceased before the rental of 1293.

Deed no. 377 records that on Dec. 30, 1378, the Hospital received payment for five plots on the site of New College, but according to the record at New College it was on Aug. 1, 1379, that the Hospital sold to William of Wykeham eight plots of land between Hammer Hall on the west, Queen's College on the south, and the Town Walls east and north. The number eight would include those on which the Hospital had a quitrent. This is proved by the fact that William of Wykeham acquired six plots from St. Frideswide's, yet at the time the Priory had nothing more than quitrents at this site.

¹ Indistinct, the deed being injured by damp, but there can be no doubt that the word is Blakehalle. In the deeds at New College the site that was acquired by William of Wykeham at this time is described as extending from Hammer Hall, the corner tenement, to the Town

Wall on the east. If it was intended to acquire the land as far as Black Hall, the intention was not completed; and Little Hammer Hall which lay to the east of Black Hall belonged to the Hospital for some years after 1378.

Hamerhalle ex parte occidentali & murum uille Oxonie ex parte orientali, et inter dictum murum uille ex parte boriali & muros Aule Regine Oxonie ex parte australi; habendas & tenendas omnes predictas placeas terre cum eorum pertinenciis prefato Willelmo & episcopis Wyntoniensibus successoribus suis (quere sicut est in carta) de capitalibus dominis feodorum illorum per seruicia inde debita & consueta in perpetuum. 30. DOMUS CHARNEL; NOW IN HERTFORD COLLEGE.

This tenement, which measured 63 feet from north to south and 42 feet from east to west, adjoined the west side of Black Hall, opposite St. Helen's passage. It was given to the Hospital in 1287 for the support of its charnel house, and in the rentals is generally called either Domus Canis or Domus Charnel ex opposito Smithgate. The rent for the first century was never more than two shillings; possibly more was paid, but it was received directly by the chaplain of the charnel house. In 1394 the property may have been rebuilt as three tenements, and the rent was raised; from 1478 to 1768 it remained unaltered at 21s. 4d. After being leased at times to the principals of Hart Hall and Hertford College, it was granted in 1824 to Magdalen Hall which succeeded the first Hertford College.

southwards as far as the tenement of Simon Scot, which was apparently to the south of Scots Hall. It is probable, therefore, that this cellar was not in New College Lane, but at the south-east corner of Scots Hall, beneath the tenement of the Hospital.

 escheated to His Majesty by the dissolution of Hertford College to the Chancellor &c. of the University, in trust for the Principal and other members of Magdalen Hall for the purpose of their removing to such site, &c.', an inquisition was held which found among other things that Magdalen Hall was contiguous to Magdalen College and that there was an ancient school for the education of choristers which was formerly part of the said Hall, and that the freehold of the site of the Hall and School was vested in Magdalen College, and that the President and Scholars of Magdalen College were about to improve and enlarge the buildings of Magdalen College which could not be done unless the hall and school were taken down, for which reason it was suggested that Magdalen Hall should be transferred to the site of Hertford College. By virtue of the Act Magdalen College 'without any consideration in money' grants to Magdalen Hall the freehold of the land formerly leased at £3 15s. 1d.

32. UNIDENTIFIED TENEMENTS IN THE PARISH OF ST. PETER. 403-407.

A TENEMENT OF JOHN DE PORTA ORIENTALI.

The following two deeds refer to a tenement in the parish of St. Peter, but we cannot tell its situation or whether it became the property of the Hospital. There is a mention of a Ricardus Cocus, living on the site of New College, in Cart. St. Frid. I. 381, but Cocus is a common name. On Aug. 10, 1227, the king issued a writ that John de Estgate among others was to be distrained to repair that part of the wall for which his house was responsible, and it may be that the Hospital at that time obtained possession of his house, as in the case of Geoffrey Picot (see no. 364). There can be no doubt that the tenement was within the walls, as no instance is known of a 'mural mansion' situated without the walls.

A TENEMENT OF WILLIAM CUPER.

The tenement next to East Gate on the north side within the city belonged to the Hospital, but the charters we have about that and the adjacent tenement do not connect it with the names of William Cuper or Walter Tovi. Possibly the Hospital at one time possessed the first house outside East Gate on the south side, but lost possession before 1279.

A TENEMENT OF THOMAS DE HANTONE.

The following deed cannot be assigned to any particular tenement. William of Holywell had land south of Harehall Lane (see no. 233), and also in the churchyard of St. Peter (see no. 347), and possibly elsewhere.

¹ At the foot in an early hand 'Ista loquitur de terra Bukehulle; non scribatur'. Seal, green, circular, a fleur-de-lis, SIGILL' WILL' MI CERCLIER. The deed is in the hand of Will' Clericus. Charter no. 71 says that the hospital at one time held the land of Gilbert Bockenulle. The footnote seems to be a direction for the scribe of the Cartulary.

³ For this name see no. 449.

⁴ There is no clause of sealing, but the tag for the seal remains.

VII. PARISH OF ST. MARY THE VIRGIN, 408-487.

I. RENT OF MATILDA DE ELY.

The rentals begin with the tenements on the south side of High Street and work towards Carfax. First comes a rent of 12*d.* from the house of Matilda de Ely, mentioned in the rentals, but not in the charters. From Oseney deeds, we know that Matilda de Ely owned the house which was afterwards known as Stanton Hall, finally the Three Tuns. In the Hundred Rolls of 1279 John le Forber holds a tenement in St. Mary's on the south side of High Street, and pays 12*d.* a year to St. John's Hospital. Apparently by that time it was no longer the property of Matilda de Ely.

² At the foot 'Transcrib'. Endorsed 'Contra Tomam de Amtone'. Seal, dark brown, circular, 1½ in., a flower of five petals, SIGILL⁷ TOME DE HANTTVN.

The rent is not mentioned after 1293; but as Stanton Hall in later times paid a rent of 12*d.* to St. Mary's church, of which there is no mention in the Hundred Rolls, it may be that an exchange was made; that the Hospital transferred to St. Mary's the rent of 12*d.* from Stanton Hall and in return was remitted 12*d.* of rent from one of the tenements of the Hospital, such as Verrer's tenement, from which a rent was due to St. Mary's.

2. DOMUS PLENTE.

West of Grove Street, the third tenement in High Street was given to the Hospital by Agnes de Farendone in 1277 (see no. 692). It consisted of a shop in High Street and a messuage in Grove Street, and appears to have been originally two tenements. The rental of 1328 shows that the donor was known as Agnes Plente, whence the tenement was called domus Plente. In some rentals it is domus Pomfret, apparently so named from an early tenant. The lease of 1528 shows that the shop on the east was the home of John Dorne or John Thorne, bookseller, whose daybook has been published in Collectanea I (O.H.S.). In 1831 the tenement was divided, and the portion in Grove Street, on which lodgings had been erected, was leased to the Principal of St. Mary Hall. In 1845 the Town granted to Magdalen the small shop on the east side in exchange for two pieces of land in All Saints' parish. In 1885 the whole was sold to Oriel and has recently been pulled down.

3. ST. THOMAS'S HALL, alias THE BORESHED, alias THE SWAN.

The last house in St. Mary's parish on the south side of High Street, now rebuilt as the corner shop of King Edward Street, paid a rent of 13s. 4d. to Magdalen College. The following deeds trace the history of this rent from 1370 to 1496, when it was handed over by Queen's College under the arrangement already described (see the note before deed 303). In the rental of 1550 the tenement is still called the Boar's Head, but no. 418 shows that the name was altered by 1496; in 1555 it is called the Swan; subsequently it was 'The Old Swan'. The rent was paid certainly as late as 1681.

¹ These witnesses are impossible. Philip de Ew was mayor 1295-9; John Hicks and William Irmonger lived in the time of king Richard II, but were not bailiffs in one year. The deed is also impossible because the rent did not belong to Richard Salesbury, but (as the previous deed shows) to Emma daughter of Joan daughter of Philip de Ew, doubtless the Emma wife of Michael Salesbury. A comparison with no. 417 suggests that the forgery was made about 1448. There is no indication that the forgery was dishonest; it seems to have been composed to strengthen what was already a good title.

4. A RENT FROM THE SPICERY.

On the north side of High Street, a tenement in the Spicery, once of John de Wicombe, paid a rent of 12*d.* to the Hospital. We have no deed dealing with this possession, but from the names of owners in the rentals we can identify the tenement. It was the first house within St. Mary's parish, and was owned by Richard le Grasier, Nicholas Garland, and Juliana Garland, during the fourteenth century. The last mention of the payment is in the rental of 1426; shortly after, the property was acquired by All Souls under the name of Garland's place, and no doubt the rent was redeemed. The property passed from All Souls to Brasenose College in 1736.

5. WEST OF ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

At the west end of St. Mary's the Hospital owned a valuable corner site, which measured (according to the plan in Skelton) about 80 feet from north to south, and 60 feet from east to west. The property was granted to the Hospital by Thomas le Verrer in 1236, and in the rental of 1328 we learn that there was a payment due from 'terra le Verrer' of 22*d.* yearly to the rector of St. Mary's. In 1255 the Hospital repurchased the land from William le Spicer, who held it by a perpetual lease. To judge from the rentals it contained three tenements, one of which was known for some years as domus Basyng; at one time there were as many as six shops on this site, some facing High Street and some facing the church, in addition to a house; and a good rent was received even when prices were most depressed. The property was originally of the fee of the rector of St. Mary's, and in early days owed suit to his court (see no. 419). It was sold to Brasenose College in 1736 together with Broadgates. It must have been one of the houses on this property that was occupied by Edward de Hales, a tenant of the Hospital of St. John, hard by the church of St. Mary, between St. Mary's and All Saints, who on Feb. 20, 1298, shot Fulco Neyrnut, priest and scholar, who was assaulting the house. ¹ In the Godstow Cartulary (p. 475 ed. E.E.T.S.) he is termed Jordanus Verrarius, and is shown to have been the occupier of the corner tenement before 1189. This deed grants to him the eastern half of the tenement; probably he was already owner of the western half. In the English version of the Godstow Cartulary he is termed Jordan Cariour (i.e. maker of window panes).

It was given by William de Preston in 1267, and in the rentals is sometimes called domus Lodelow, from the name of a tenant. Between 1511 and 1580, when Oxford was at its lowest ebb, it was a vacant piece of ground at a rent of 20d., and was leased with domus Plente (see no. 411); about 1590 it was a stable, but before 1640 a dwelling-house was built. The property was sold to the Trustees of Dr. Radcliffe in 1736.

7. A RENT GIVEN BY PILET.

The fifth house belonged to Godstow, the sixth to Exeter College, the seventh to St. Frideswide's, and the eighth paid a rent of 4s. to the Hospital. In early times the seventh and eighth houses were one holding belonging to John Pilet. By the following deed it was granted to the Hospital, but under onerous terms; when the rentals begin, the Hospital is in possession of no more than a quitrent of 4s. from the northern half. In 1246 the southern half was given to St. Frideswide's (Cart. St. Frid. I. 331), and John Pilet stipulated that the Hospital should have a rent of 4s. from this part also; but the Hospital had no charter to show, and though the money was claimed from St. Frideswide's from domus Scolog' which is placed among the Academic halls in the two earliest rentals, there is a note added 'Non est spes'; and the Hospital had to be content with the rent from the other half of the property. This was not received after about 1600.

8. A QUITRENT OF SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

The ninth tenement, which was known as Grantpont Hall in the fourteenth century, paid a quitrent to the Hospital of St. John. If the arrangement of the following deeds is correct, it belonged in 1240 to Robert de Derbi, who granted it to the Hospital, to be held until he had paid a debt of 44s.; possibly the debt was never paid, and it was agreed that the Hospital should have a perpetual rent of 7s. 6d. The son of Robert de Derbi granted the tenement to Eynsham (Cart. of Eynsham, I. 184, O.H.S.), but it did not belong to the Abbey at the time of the Hundred Rolls of 1279. It appears that the quitrent was not received after 1500.

Et tunc temporis ponebatur predictum solarium pro octo solidis per annum. Et quanto tempore predictum solarium potest tradi pro octo solidis per annum tanto tempore predicti confratres allocabunt quatuor solidos pro arreragiis per annum & quatuor in annuali reddito predicto quousque omnia arreragia soluantur, simul cum capitali reddito; et tres solidi & sex denarii qui remanent de capitali reddito predicto qui non ponuntur in reddito exeunte de predicto solario debent solui de capitali mesuagio dicte Alicie, sicut prius, scilicet ad festum Conuersionis sancti Pauli apostoli duos solidos, ad festum Annuntiationis beate Marie in Marcio nouem denarios & ad festum sancti Michaelis nouem denarios. Et si predictum solarium non sufficiat ad octo solidos per annum tunc bene licebit predictis confratribus ad totum tenementum predictę Alicie redire & distringere, sicut prius fecerunt, quousque eis satisfactum sit de reddito & de arreragiis. Et si contingat quod predicti confratres aliquos sumptus uel expensas in sustentacione predicti solarii apponant ante solutionem predictorum arreragiorum, concedit predicta Alicia pro se & heredibus suis uel suis assignatis quod predicti confratres teneant predictum solarium quousque habeant plenarie suas expensas una cum arreragiis predictis; & etiam concedit predicta Alicia pro se & heredibus suis quod predicti confratres, quicumque procuratores fuerint, infra tempus predictum credantur in computacione tam de receptione arreragiorum quam de expensis circa solarium predictum factis suo simplici dicto absque aliqua alia probatione. Et predicta uero Alicia & heredes sui uel sui assignati predictis magistro & fratribus & eorum successoribus predictum solarium sicut predictum est contra omnes homines, mares & feminas warantizabunt & defendent. 9. FAUNT'S.

The tenth tenement belonged to Littlemore ; the eleventh belonged to the Hospital, and was known as Faunt's. Probably it was the southern half of Bradfot's tenement, which comes next. In 1267 the Hospital granted it on a perpetual lease, at a rent of 10s., to John le Einfant of Wolvercot and his heirs and assigns. The name of the owner was soon shortened to Faunt ; and the tenement, known as Faunt's, was granted to the Hospital by Roger de Marton in 1360, although the gift was completed only in 1370. Its subsequent history is given under the next two tenements.

10. WILLIAM THE BOOKBINDER'S.

About 1220 Elias Bradfot gave to the Hospital a messuage which was bounded on the one side by the land of the sons of Eilnod, and on the other by the land of Hugo Rufus. It is uncertain whether this is to be identified with the holding which was afterwards of William the bookbinder, or whether it included Faunts as well. If the latter is the case, the southern half of the tenement was alienated for a rent of 10s., but the northern half for a rent of 24s. Both the portions were recovered in time, and were let for about 20s. each.

11. A TENEMENT OF ST. FRIDESWIDE'S.

Next on the north was a tenement which in early times belonged to the two sons of Ailnoth or Eilnod; of this the northern half was given to St. Frideswide's by John Ailnoth (Cart. St. Frid. I. 351) about 1220, the southern half was given to the Hospital by Philip the Miller in 1245. The tenement was held in common, and the two owners united in granting a lease to Robert de Bello Monte, notary (Cart. St. Frid. I. 337). In 1338 the Hospital surrendered its half of the tenement to St. Frideswide's, but in 1483 it recovered the whole tenement, which at that time was only a garden, held by the tenant of the Magdalen property on the south (see no. 968).

Magdalen by this means acquired three adjacent holdings and the whole, measuring $83\frac{1}{2}$ feet from north to south, was let to two tenants at the rents of 23s. 4d. and 20s., until in 1615 it was leased to the University for the erection of the Bodleian. In lieu of rent the University leased to the College, free of rent, two houses between the New Schools and the Town Wall, which brought to the College 44s. a year in rent. In 1686 the University took back these two houses, and agreed to pay a rent of £3 for the land on which the south-east corner of the Bodleian had been built, the College in return making the concession that the lease should be renewed every fourteen years "without any fine". This clause remained in all the leases until 1824, but it was omitted in 1838 and in the subsequent leases. Whether the omission was accidental, or whether it was with the consent of both parties we cannot tell. In 1866 the authorities of Magdalen refused to renew the lease to the University, thinking that they would not be doing their duty to the College if they gave away such a valuable site. The University therefore in 1893 purchased it for £7,000, neither party being aware that the earlier leases had a clause which would have made the purchase unnecessary. Some ill-feeling was aroused at the time, but as Magdalen since then has repaid the price many times in grants to the University, the matter may now be considered ancient history. The site of this land is shown in a plan dated 1613, which was discovered in 1913 and has now been framed and hangs in the Bodleian.

[A renewal of the same lease.]

An indenture made July 27, 13 Car. I, between the right worshipful S. Mary Accepted Frewein, president, and the scholars of the college of St. Mary the V. Magdalen, and the Chancellor, masters and scholars of the University. July 27, 68.2
The wording is exactly as in the indenture of Sept. 30, 13 Jac. I, but 1637 a clause is added that the University may not make any undertenant in the land without the permission of the College; also for 'nowe in building' is read 'lately built.'

[The University leases to Magdalen two tenements in exchange.]

An indenture made July 29, 13 Car. I, between the University and S. Mary Magdalen College, whereby after reciting the lease of July 27, the V. 68.3
13 Car. I, the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University, July 29, desirous that the College should have recompense for the houses 1637 aforesaid and for the plot of ground 'have demised, granted and to farme letten . . . unto the said president and schollers those two houses or tenements situate in the parish of St. Mary over against the north part of the new schools of Arts lately built, the one lately in the tenure and occupation of John Adams, bookbinder, containing on the south side towards the new schools from the east unto the west ten Taylours yards and halfe a foot, and in the north side towards the Townewall from the east unto the west nine Taylours' yards with a parcell of ground thereunto belonging containing in length from the east unto the west eleven taylours yards and 3 inches and in breadth at the east end $5\frac{1}{4}$ yards, in the middle from the uttermost part of the post of the doore westward of the backside to the town wall 4 yards, and at the west end of the uttermost part thereof half a yard; the other lately in the tenure and occupation of Thomas Miller containing in breadth in the inside between the north and the south wall $5\frac{3}{4}$ yards, and from the east to the west $5\frac{1}{8}$ yards, with a little backside at the west end thereof, containing from the east end thereof in breadth from the town wall on the north part unto the wall on the south part 5 yards and in length 5 yards and one foot, and at the west end in breadth $1\frac{1}{2}$ yards', to hold for 40 years; rent eightpence; the University promises to renew this lease, using the same words in which the College promised to renew their lease; the College will keep the buildings in repair, and will pave 'such part of the street as lyeth before the said houses or tenements halfway toward the north wall of the new erected schools'.

A memorandum is attached stating it was agreed that the true intent and meaning of those two leases was that the College should receive 43s. 4d. from the University,¹ but not pay the rent of 8d.; because the two tenements in Cat Street 'do yelde forty foure shillings' to the College.

12. HERBURWEHALL.

This hall, on the east side of Cat Street, was given to the Hospital in 1265 by Andrew Halegod; it lay between Corbet's Hall, afterwards known as Tingewick's Inn, on the north, and Goodnave Hall on the south, and must have been where the great gates of All Souls quadrangle stand. The name is old, and was in use as early as about 1200. By the end of the thirteenth century it was known as Magna Scola, and in the fifteenth century as Physick Hall. In the first half of the fourteenth century the property consisted of a school rented at about 40s., and four rooms let in four separate holdings; in 1357 this is reduced to a school rented at 20s, and an 'entry' at 13s.; in the rental of 1374 the latter is called St. John's Entry. Probably St. John's Entry was a small academic hall; and Magna Scola may have been a hall as well as a school; from the fact that it was known as Physick Hall, it is thought by Wood that the school of medicine was here. In 1374 it was rented by mag. Ioh. Frense; in 1384 by a canon of Oseney; in 1390 John Fayrwoode; in 1392 John Lavington. Both buildings are mentioned in the rental of 1426. About 1440 they must have been acquired by All Souls at a perpetual rent of 20s. The deed is no longer in existence, but the receipts given by the Hospital for the rent of 20s. from 1444 onwards are preserved at All Souls.

13. ING HALL.

This was the last house in St. Mary's parish on the north side of High Street, and was next to Drowda Hall. It was given to the Hospital by John Pilet (see no. 175). A reserved rent on Ing Hall and Kepeharm Hall was subsequently given to the Hospital by Philip Pille. Ing Hall was an academic hall down to the rental of 1426. As late as 1458 it appears in the list of Halls (Munim. Acad. p. 679), but in the rental of 1480 and onwards it is no longer a hall. There was a suggestion about 1720 to grant this property to All Souls in exchange for the Three Cups to the west of Carfax, and plans of both the tenements as they were at that time are preserved at Magdalen. Finally All Souls bought it in 1776, and it is now the land to the east of the Warden's house.

14. PERLE'S HOUSE.

On the west side of Grove Street the Hospital had a small property. It was in the parish of St. Mary, but in the rentals is placed among the tenements of St. John's parish, because the houses on the other side of Grove Street, which also paid rent to the Hospital, were in St. John's parish. The last tenement in St. Mary's parish on the west side of Grove Street belonged to St. Frideswide's; next on the north was Perle's house, which does not figure in the rental of 1293, as it was not acquired until after 1299. It is hard to believe that the tenement was worth 33s. a year, as seems to be implied in no. 474. The price given in no. 476 implies that it was worth about 10s. a year, the rate of interest being about $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. We learn from no. 475 that the rent mentioned in no. 474 was only paid for four years, and such may have been the intention from the first; in that case no. 474 is practically the sale of the property for 10 marks, to be paid in four annual instalments.

¹ Seal wanting. It seems that although Henry Perle made his will in 1260, he did not die until 1290. But in the Hundred Rolls of 1279 (ii. 800) the house next to the tenement of St. Frideswide's in Grope Lane is held not by Henry Perle but by John Warcheyn in right of his wife.

with Joan Perle of the previous deed. This is proved by a deed in Cart. St. Frid. i. 217, where the Priory grants two tenements in St. Aldate's to William Kepeharm and Joan his wife, daughter of Henry Perle, for the term of their lives. The property was New Inn or next to it, and in the Hundred Rolls is in the hands of John Warcheyn, in right of his wife.

¹ The deed has the appearance of being only a confirmation and a quitclaim, in which case there would be no record who gave the property to the Hospital; but it is probable that the form of a quitclaim was used merely because the Hospital had already obtained a lease of the tenement.

15. BALLE'S SHOPS.

North of Perle's came a holding which in the rentals is often called Balle's shops, from the name of an early tenant. A quitrent was given by Adam Crust in 1257, and the freehold was given next year. The Hospital must subsequently have alienated the tenement for a quitrent of 8s., which is mentioned in the rental of 1293 but not in the Hundred Rolls of 1279; in 1312 the freehold was recovered. In 1467 the site of Balle's and Perle's was an orchard where once were two shops and a stable, bounded on the south by a tenement of St. Frideswide's, and on the north by a toft of the chantry of St. Thomas. In that year it was granted to Oriel (see no. 638), and the measurements of the property are given, but no. 481 postulates that at one time the holding of the Hospital was larger.

Sciunt presentes & futuri quod ego Ricardus de Mortone barbator de Oxonia dedi, concessi, & hac presenti carta mea confirmaui magistro & fratribus hospitalis sancti Iohannis extra portam orientalem Oxonie quandam placeam terre continentem in longitudine uiginti pedes & in latitudine quatuor pedes cum quadam cloaca existente ad caput australe eiusdem placee & cum quadam gutera existente ad caput boriale dicte placee iuxta terram²; & iacet dicta placea in longitudine inter tenementum magistri Ade Schydyerd ex parte orientali & tenementum predictorum magistri & fratrum ex parte occidentali; & ad unum capud australe se extendit usque ad tenementum predicti magistri Ade, et ad caput boreale se extendit usque ad terram Gilberti de Grens[ted; habendam & tenen]dam predictam placeam terre cum predictis cloaca & gutera & cum omnibus aliis suis pertinenciis predictis magistro & fratribus hospitalis predicti libere, quiete, bene & in pace imperpetuum absque aliquo seruicio inde faciendo. Et ego predictus Ricardus & heredes mei predictam placeam terre cum predictis cloaca & gutera & cum omnibus aliis suis pertinenciis predictis magistro & fratribus & eorum successoribus contra omnes gentes warentizabimus imperpetuum et defendemus. Because of the name of Adam of Shidyerd we may assign this deed to the holding of the Hospital on the west side of Grove Street.

² This must mean 'adjoining the said piece of land'.

³ Endorsed 'Gropelane'. It is not stated that this land was in St. Mary's parish; but deed no. 482 informs us that Gilbert de Grensted held land in St. Mary's parish in Grove Street. As Richard grants the gutter of the house on the north side, it is clear that this must have been his property, and Gilbert de Grensted his tenant; possibly Adam Schydyerd was also his tenant. According to the description of the property in 1467 (no. 638) the property at that time was not on the west side of the tenement of Adam of Schydyerd or of any other tenement.

16. THREE SHOPS IN GROVE STREET.

The following two deeds refer to a tenement in St. Mary's parish in Grove Street, which is not known to have become the property of the Hospital. Perhaps the deeds accidentally passed into the possession of the Hospital in connexion with nos. 604 and 606. The assumption is that Henry de Oseberstone, barber, was the successor of Richard de Mortone, barber, and that Adam de Schydyerd, mentioned in no. 481, either gave his land to St. Mary's church, or (more probably) held his land from the rector of St. Mary's. The tenement of St. Thomas's Chantry, mentioned in no. 638, probably embraced the land of Adam de Schydyerd as well as the land to the north of it.

20. UNIDENTIFIED.

We cannot tell to which house in St. Mary's the following deed refers. The seal of deed no. 420 informs us that Thomas le Verrer was the son of Elviva, probably sister of Cristina, daughter of Robert Stelmere (see no. 419); yet it is not likely that this deed refers to the tenement at the west end of St. Mary's, held by Thomas Verrer. We have early deeds about that tenement and about the tenements on the west and north, which belonged to Oseney and Godstow respectively, and none of them make mention of Hereword the weaver, or of Robert and Hugh Burewold.

APPENDIX I

DESCRIPTION OF PLANS

PLAN I is a tracing from a plan made in 1771 or 1772 by Mr. J. Gwynne, architect for the City of Oxford, when it was proposed to rebuild Magdalen Bridge. The original is in the British Museum, in the King's Library, with the press-mark K. xxxiv. 32. It is reproduced here to show the position of the property in St. Clement's parish, which belonged to the Hospital of St. John, and the line of the buildings to the west of Magdalen College.

Plan V is compiled from four sources. From the Ordnance Survey it has been possible only to give the tenements at the eastern and western ends, as the rest of the site had been cleared when the Survey was made. The Angel has been plotted in from the collotype which is now Plate VI. The shape of Ram Alley is known from a plan on a lease of that tenement, and the tenements next to it on the east are known from a lithograph plan now in the University Archives. Plans IV, III, and II are obtained by working back from Plan V, making use of evidence which is given in this volume.

Plan VI is taken from an original in the possession of Mr. Percy Manning, in which the part leased from Oriel on the eastern side is marked blue, and the part on the western side with a frontage of 44 ft. 4 in., leased from University College, is yellow. It will be noticed that the Carriage Entrance was through the property of Oriel College.

Plan VII is based upon the Ordnance Survey. The size of the tenements from Ing Hall to Katherine Hall is certain; Wileby Hall is represented as the same size as Katherine Hall because, according to Oseney deeds, they were originally halves of one tenement; from that point to the corner of Queen's College the succession of the tenements is certain, but not their breadth or depth. It will be noticed that, when the front of Queen's College was built, a small strip of the public road was acquired from the Town, and a larger strip was thrown into the road, though it is believed that it is still the property of the College. The rest of the tenements eastward are given from the Ordnance Survey. At the north end of White Hall the portion which was sold to Queen's College (see p. 325) is marked with dotted lines, and as it is known that the site of the chapel of St. Edmund Hall was once New College land, it will be seen that the eastern boundary of that Hall was originally a straight line. The width of the road running northward from East Gate is known for the reason that it belonged to New College by the gift of William of Wykeham, and a house was ultimately erected there, of which we know the width.

Plan VIII gives two tracings from originals at Magdalen. The plan of Ing Hall was made about 1725, when there was a proposal, which fell through, that it should be given to All Souls in exchange for the Three Cups, near Carfax. The plan of the other tenement was probably made to show how much Dr. Gibson, Provost of Queen's, proposed to pull down, when he acquired his lease in 1725. A comparison with Plan VII will show that the line of what became the Provost's Garden is different from the dotted line which appears in Plan VIII. Mr. Litchfield's printing establishment, which is marked on this plan, is frequently mentioned in Hearne's Diary.

Plan IX is traced from the original in the University Archives. The situation of the tenement is more obvious in Plan XII.

Plan X is also from the University Archives; but its proportions are very inaccurate, both Cat Street and Exeter College lane being represented as about four feet wide, whereas the width was over twenty feet. Plate XII shows the same site, correctly plotted out.

Plan XI is from the original in the University Archives. It is the only authority we have which shows the size and position of the houses at the north end of Cat Street, opposite the Bodleian.

Plan XII is a combination of the Ordnance Survey and Plans IX, X, XI; and the holding of Magdalen at the south-east corner of the Bodleian is from a drawing of 1613, now framed and hung in the Bodleian.

Plan XIII is from the original in the University Archives; permission to make this tracing, and also Plans IX, X, and XI, was kindly given by the Keeper of the Archives. If it is compared with Cole's map of December 1713, reproduced in Skelton's Oxonia Antiqua, Plate 133, the inaccuracy of this earlier map is obvious. The Parish House was not due north of the corner of the Bodleian, but somewhat westward. It seems that 'the Parish House' of our Plan is the same as 'Marsh's House' in the map of December 1713, and 'The New Printing House' of our Plan is 'Mr. Barnes's Room' in the later map.

Plan XIV is traced from two originals at Magdalen College.

Plan XV is a conjectural reconstruction of the northern part of Grove Street. The size of William Hall is known from leases in the University Archives, the depth of Deep Hall from an Oseney deed; all the other measurements are from the present volume, except the length of the west side of the toft of the chantry of St. Thomas; this comes from an Oriel deed, calendared by the late Provost, Mr. C. L. Shadwell.

APPENDIX II

ON THE TOWN-PLANNING OF SAXON OXFORD

WHEN Plans II, III, IV, and V are compared, it will be noticed that the shape of the tenements becomes more and more irregular with process of time, and that, if we work back from 1870 to 1280, lines in the modern map which have no meaning are found to be the remains of a time when the district was marked off into holdings of a regular shape, like building sites on any field in the suburbs of Oxford. If we had only the later plans, we might think that the block had at one time been one large holding, or perhaps two, and that portions had been separated from time to time as purchasers made offers, a corner being sold here, and another corner there. But the earlier plans prove that this was not the case. Before any house was built, the plots must have been marked out by the man to whom the whole site belonged. Nor is it a peculiarity of this portion of Oxford. It is found throughout the City, though the proof is not so convincing in all parts; but a glance at the series of plans in this volume will show that most of the holdings in Oxford have an artificial shape, the boundary lines are in no case curved,¹ and neighbouring tenements, though not equal in breadth, are nearly always equal in depth.

But the cautious reader will ask how he is to be sure that Plans II and III represent the state of affairs in 1280 and 1448, and are not merely an invention to support a theory. There is no map of Oxford earlier than 1750, and plans of isolated tenements are rare before 1700, and are often out of scale. Yet the main lines of ¹ Perhaps the only approach to a curved line in the whole of Oxford is on Plan VII: there may have been some tree or gravel-pit at that spot, which dislocated the line in early times.

Plans II and III may be trusted; for many of the tenements, especially those facing High Street, had not changed hands for 600 years, until they were recently sold to the University. The shape of the tenements behind is not so well known, especially between Kibald Street and Merton Street, and it may be that they were not so methodically rectangular as in the plan, but it is enough that the houses on the north side are known to have been all of the same depth and all rectangular, and are evidently not an instance of squatters each seizing the piece that suited him, but must have been planned by some authority in early times.

But if this is allowed, it might still be asked whether the planning took place in Saxon or Norman times. May we assume that what was true of the site in 1280 was true in 1066? To many this seems a dangerous assumption; and there is a tendency to think of Saxon times as uncivilized, and to assign to Norman times any proof of organized government on a large scale. Some who would allow that a town might be town-planned in Norman times, would hesitate to admit it in Saxon times. But it may be pointed out that though Plan II represents the site about 1280, yet in the Cartulary the title-deeds of many of the tenements run back forty or sixty years earlier; and that the tenements seem to have been in 1220 exactly of the same shape as in 1280. And in connexion with St. Frideswide's and Oseney we have earlier deeds, though not about this part of Oxford; but many of their tenements which are mentioned in 1150 can easily be identified in the Hundred Rolls of 1279. Between these two dates there was no rearrangement of the geography of Oxford. We can even go back twenty years earlier to 1129, when Robert D'Oyley gave to Oseney twelve houses in Oxford, mentioning their names, which houses figure in the Hundred Rolls of 1279 and in the Oseney rentals, and in fact to this day remain as tenements, though in some cases subdivided in modern times. For the forty-three years between Domesday Book and 1129 we have practically no deeds about Oxford, but there is not the least reason to think that there was during that period any alteration in the bounds of Oxford, the directions of the streets, or even in the churches and parishes of Oxford. In the Cartularies of Oseney and St. Frideswide the parishes of Oxford from the very earliest times were the same as in 1279, and the only church that we know to have been founded after the Norman Conquest is St. Giles's. We may therefore assume that the position of the walls of Oxford, the position of the churches, the shape of the streets, and the shape of the tenements were much the same in 1066 as in 1279, and in fact the evidence goes to show that there was less change in those two centuries than in the two centuries which followed 1279. If, therefore, we are convinced by Plan II that there must have been town-planning in that part of Oxford, it must have taken place in Saxon times.

But it is not only the shape of the tenements which shows that Oxford was town-planned; it is also shown by the plan of the streets and by the situation of the churches. The plan of Oxford is rectangular; all the streets meet at right angles with two exceptions, both of which are modern, viz. New Road, made in 1771, which makes an acute angle with Castle Street, and King Edward Street, which makes an acute angle with Oriel Street. With these exceptions the plan of Oxford is like a gridiron. Now towns fall into two classes, gridirons and spiders'-webs; towns that are planned are the former, towns that grow are the latter. All our modern towns have grown, and their plans are like spiders'-webs, for the reason that they start from a focus, probably a hamlet, which is connected by a network of roads with neighbouring hamlets and towns, and when growth takes place, houses are built along these roads. In the case of modern towns like Bournemouth or Aldershot, we can see the process taking place before our eyes, and in modern Oxford we have in Cowley and North Oxford the strands of the spider's-web in the main roads which stretch away from Oxford. But within the walls of Oxford it is otherwise. The streets must have been laid down before building began; the whole site was mapped out into rectangles, and there are no diagonal streets. In short, the plan of the streets proves that Oxford was not a village which grew into a town, but started full-grown as a town.

Not only must the streets and the sites for houses have been planned at one time, but the sites of the churches must have been settled at the same time. Our custom is to build a church only when it becomes necessary owing to the growth of population; but it seems that the Saxons set apart sites for churches in Oxford at the time when they planned the rest of the town. This is proved by the large number of churches which stood at the junctions of roads. The following churches stood at the meeting of four roads:¹—

¹ For the position of the churches and streets of ancient Oxford the reader may be referred to the frontispiece of the Oxford Deeds of Balliol College (O.H.S.).

St. Peter le Bailey, St. Martin, All Saints, St. Mary, St. Ebbe, St. Mildred, and St. Michael North; the following were at the meeting of three roads:—St. Peter in the East, St. Edward, St. Michael South, St. Frideswide, and St. John. Only one church stood at no corner, namely St. Aldate's; for until modern times there was a row of houses on its east side, as there still is on its north side. If it is suggested that a junction of four roads is the prominent site which a builder of a church prefers, the answer is that it is also the site which the shop-keeper prefers; and it was so in early ages as much as now, for corner-sites commanded the highest rent of all. A valuable corner-site is just the piece of land which cannot be acquired when houses have once been built. If we think of the modern places of worship which have been built in Oxford, few of them have been able to secure a junction of four roads. St. Andrew's is so situated; the Pusey House chapel and St. Margaret's are at the meeting of three roads; St. Philip and St. James, St. Aloysius, St. George's, and the new chapel of the Presbyterians are at no junction of roads. Furthermore St. Andrew's is only at a junction of four roads because the site was set apart before the houses of that neighbourhood were built. If it were desired now to build a church in St. Martin's parish, no one would think of buying one of the corners of Carfax; it would be too expensive. It is true enough that the blocks of houses in ancient Oxford were small, and some churches would inevitably chance to be at corners, even though they were subsequent to the building of the houses, and we may allow that it would be so in about one case out of four; but the figures of ancient Oxford are very different, where (putting aside the churches at the junction of three roads) seven churches out of eight were at the junction of four roads. The chances would be 31:1 against such a state of things being fortuitous, if in the ordinary course of events the chances are three to one against a new church being built on a corner-site.

We have, therefore, threefold evidence that Oxford is an artificial town, and that its streets, churches, and tenements were plotted out for the whole site before building began. No doubt some of the churches and parishes may be later than the birth of Oxford, and there is some evidence that St. Mildred's, St. John's, St. Michael's South and St. Edward's were of this kind; but we may assume that the four churches which occupied the four most commanding sites in Oxford at the four crossings of the main street, the churches of St. Peter le Bailey, St. Martin, All Saints, and St. Mary, date from the first planning of Oxford.

The method of plotting the tenements seems to have been to run through each block a division or backbone, not in the middle but towards one side, so that the block provided sites for first-class and second-class houses. It will be noticed in Plan II that it was so in that block; and it was so in the block next towards the west, now the site of University College; the eastern end of the backbone may be seen in Plan II, and if it is continued in a straight line its western end coincides with the line which appears in Plan XV. It divided the block into tenements facing High Street with a depth of about 200 feet, while those which faced Kibald Street had only a depth of about 60 feet. The same arrangement may be seen in the plan of the site of the Camera given in Skelton's Oxonia Antiqua, Plate 141, where the smaller houses face Cat Street and the larger houses face School Street. It is noticeable that the boundaries of parishes in no case coincide with roads, but run along these backbones, so that it seems likely that the custom of beating bounds of parishes was not a Saxon custom; or at all events that the modern method of following the boundaries was not then in use.

If Oxford was town-planned, it may be asked who did it and when and why. To these questions we can only answer in guesses. It may be guessed that it was done by some Saxon king; for the town of Oxford was the king's property from the beginning, and an important, though small, manor of the king bounded Oxford on the north side as far east as Park Street. The date when it was founded must be after Christianity was firmly established, and after the time when it became the rule that every part of England must be within some parish. Probably we should be wise to say that this could not be much before the year 800. The purpose for which it was founded was no doubt the purpose for which landowners still turn agricultural land into building sites, the purpose of gain. To illustrate what may have happened at Oxford about the year 800, we may study what actually happened at Eynsham four centuries later. In 1215 the abbot of Eynsham¹ granted to tenants a piece of his demesne land, adjoining the old borough of Eynsham, and divided it into portions of an acre or less as building sites, the ground rent being at the rent of 4s. an acre. As agricultural land at that time was worth only one shilling an acre, the abbot increased his income from the land fourfold.

But the world is full of building sites, and the difficulty is to attract builders. To accomplish this, the abbot offered special privileges to those who would settle on this land; they were to be a borough by themselves, with their own officers and with advantages above those which the old borough enjoyed. It is natural to think that the foundation of Oxford was on much the same lines. We know that in the Middle Ages many of the houses in Oxford paid a ground-rent to the king called land-gable (gablum in Domesday Book), and although it is impossible to state the exact sum it produced, we may safely say that it was not less than £8; but the agricultural rent for the site of Oxford in Norman times would not have been more than £4, and in Saxon times much less; the king therefore increased his income by turning his demesne land into building sites, not to mention the income that he derived from amercements and market tolls. To attract residents, no doubt he offered that they should have self-government, with their own court and their own officers. Furthermore, as the residents in Oxford would of necessity be almost entirely tradesmen, they may from the very first have been allowed the trading privileges of fixing among themselves what should be the regulations of trade and the prices of goods, and of excluding from trade in Oxford those whom they refused to admit to their gild. At Lincoln the gild of merchants is stated to have been in existence in Saxon times,¹ and it seems that it was so at Oxford. An Oseney charter mentions the merchant gild in 1149, at which time it was in possession of Port Meadow, which it held all through the Middle Ages; and sixty years earlier when we read in Domesday that the burgenses of Oxford held Port Meadow, it can hardly mean another body of men than those who held it in 1149; and in fact burgensis in the Middle Ages means in Oxford a member of the gild, and was not used of an ordinary resident of the town. It is not unlikely therefore that the gild of traders dates from the origin of Oxford, and was put forward as a means to attract residents.

Another mode by which houses, if not residents, were provided for Oxford is known to us. Most land in Saxon time was subject to three burdens, viz. military service in time of war, the repairing of the county bridges when it was necessary, and the repairing of the walls of the county town or some other town to which the land was attached. Just as in the villages each virgate was responsible for the repair of the churchyard fence (or, as it was called, mound), and each person knew where was the piece for which he was responsible, so each manor was responsible for the repair of so many feet of the wall of the county town, and it was known where was the portion which belonged to each manor. But in Oxford and some other towns a different method was followed, and the burden of repairing the town wall was put upon certain houses in the town which were attached to the manors of the county. These are the mansiones murales of Domesday Book, which we are informed paid no rent to the king, so that the sites must have been handed over to the lords of the manors free of rent, no doubt on condition that houses were erected on which the king could distrain if the walls of the city were not duly repaired.

The New Borough of Eynsham may throw some light not only on the mode in which Oxford was founded, but also on the geography of Oxford; for we luckily have an old plan of Eynsham which shows where the New Borough lay and how it was made. It shows that the field which the abbot took was, like most fields in the open-field system, roughly rectangular but not mathematically, and the building sites into which the field was divided are in consequence roughly rectangular, but preserve the lines of the field. So in Oxford the original lines of the field or fields, where the city was founded, may be responsible for the lines which still remain. For instance the eastern part of Oxford, from St. Mary's to East Gate, runs south-east and north-west, but the western part of Oxford runs east and west. This may be because these parts of Oxford belonged to two different systems of fields. The boundary between Oxford manor and Holywell manor runs down Park Street and, if continued, would run by Cat Street and Grove Street to the southern wall. Oxford, therefore, may stand partly on a field of the manor of Oxford and partly on a field of the manor of Holywell, both roughly rectangular, but not oriented in the same way. This would explain why, although Oxford is town-planned on the rectangular system, the High Street has a curve in it towards its eastern end. It would also explain another point. At the north end of Cat Street by Smith Gate the northern wall of Oxford bent outwards, and the wall on the east of this gate was not in the same line as the rest of the north wall.¹ This may be because the north boundary of Oxford followed the boundary of the fields, and the field in the manor of Holywell was not in the same line as the field in the manor of Oxford. But if part of Oxford was founded on land of the manor of Holywell, it must be confessed no trace remains of this fact except the ecclesiastical connexion between Holywell and St. Peter's in the East; for we learn from this Cartulary that there were mural mansions in the eastern part of Oxford no less than elsewhere, and it belonged to the king just as the rest of Oxford.
